[illegible] IN THE PENITENTIARY

[illegible] on the Northern Pacific—Two [illegible]—A Desperate Encounter—A Wife's Crime.

[illegible], Oct. 5.—A large excursion [illegible] for Portland to-morrow. A [illegible] has been chartered. It is here, [illegible] beautifully decorated, and will [illegible] present an attractive appearance. This special car and excursion is [illegible] evidence of the energy and [illegible] citizens of La Grande. [illegible] is estimated that the excursion [illegible] three cars, containing [illegible] the Knights of Pythias, who go [illegible] to attend the opening of the [illegible] Asotin. The leading car of [illegible] is beautifully decorated with [illegible] and mottoes. The upper [illegible] bear the "Uniform Rank, [illegible] Black Prince division, [illegible], Oregon." The lower [illegible] "The Grand Ronde valley, [illegible] of Oregon; abundant crops, [illegible] plenty of water. "The Eden [illegible]." With knightly [illegible] greet our sister [illegible] the future metropolis [illegible] city of unlimited resources; [illegible] cars of grain and [illegible] 50,000; cars of wool, 150; [illegible] 100; cars of fruit, 50; [illegible]. This grand excursion, with its [illegible] attempts to advertise La [illegible] evidence of the energy [illegible] citizens, and shows that we [illegible] the republican ways.

THE SAN FRANCISCO FLEET.

After Many Years South America Is Again Calling for Wheat.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—There was not a single ship from New York here in September, although five were due long before the end of the month.

There were two ships from Cardiff, with coal and iron, and one from Antwerp with an assorted cargo, but not a vessel from England.

The ships from Australia and British Columbia brought full cargoes of coal; those from the Hawaiian islands and Philippine islands rice and sugar, and those from South America nitrate.

The last of the codfishers arrived at the close of the month. A tender to the whaling fleet also arrived with home.

About a year ago a vessel put into this port to load Pacific coast wheat for Rio de Janeiro. It was the first announcement of the kind in twenty-two years, and of course a novelty. That pioneer, however, has been followed by seven vessels; the last one clearing only yesterday. Two others also sailed August 18 and September 28 for Maldonado and Montevideo, the former with 63,958 centals of wheat and the latter with 58,808 centals. Brazil has been drawing wheat from the Argentine Republic, but the last crop there was a partial failure, and hence the above demands on this market.

TO FACE HIS ACCUSERS.

Hon. T. L. Stiles Leaves To-Night for Tucson.

HE IS CONFIDENT OF VINDICATION

Over This Case a San Francisco Journal Borrows a Deal of Trouble for the New State of Washington.

TACOMA, Oct. 5.—The Hon. T. L. Stiles leaves to-morrow night for Tucson, A. T., to demand an immediate hearing of the case against him. He anticipates that there will be no effort made to sustain the charges preferred against him by the Greaser grand jury of Tucson, and that two weeks will settle the entire business. He is attorney for the Mexican, Samaigo, the man who is quoted as preferring the charges, and has only recently secured a judgment for him against the United States for $13,000.

THE "EXAMINER" ALARMED.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—The Examiner seems to be considerably exercised over the election of Judge Stiles in Washington territory to be supreme judge. Editorially this paper says to-day: "The election in Washington raises an interesting legal question. Mr. Stiles, who has been chosen by 8000 majority to be supreme judge, is under indictment in Arizona for felony and embezzlement. Should Judge Stiles be in active performance of his duties when an extradition warrant from Arizona arrived, would he be entitled to leave of absence to go and stand trial, and if so, would the business of the supreme court of Washington be suspended until his return, or would a substitute be found? Furthermore, suppose he should be convicted and sentenced to the Arizona penitentiary; would his seat on the supreme bench be reserved for him? Of course, if a judge commits a crime while in office he is subject to removal, but the alleged offence of Stiles was committed and the indictment found long before his election. He has been chosen in full public knowledge of the circumstances, and it is to be presumed that the people intend to accept whatever inconsistence may inhere in the situation."

THE GREAT FALLS AND CANADA.

A New Railroad Company Incorporated With a Capital of $2,500,000.

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Oct. 5.—The great Falls & Canada Railroad Company was incorporated here yesterday, with $2,500,000 capital. The company will build a road from Great Falls to the Canadian line, when the same parties will build to the coal mines at Lethbridge, Canada, which is connected with the Canadian Pacific by a railroad 110 miles long. The principal incorporator is Donald Grant, the well-known railroad builder.

The principal purpose of the road is to provide an outlet for the coal fields at Lethbridge. The new road will pass west of the Sweet Grass region, in Choteau county, and will be used to distribute coal from the great fields over points reached by the Manitoba Central and Northern Pacific.

Work will be commenced as soon as the season will admit.

Walla Wal'a Notes.

WALLA WALLA, Oct. 5.—The first passenger train over the Pendleton branch of the Hunt road will leave here Sunday on the first train over the over the O. R. & N. will run from Pendleton via this city into Spokane Falls.

The troop that for some time have been in camp of instruction on the Umatilla reservation returned home to-day.

This afternoon Fred Snively, a workman in Small's stables, was kicked by a horse with the result of breaking his right leg at the knee.

This morning John Kent, a well-known butcher, was driving cattle, and his horse felt with him, fracturing his left leg.

The fair is a financial success. The free-for-all trot was not finished, but was postponed until Monday.

Troop L, Second United States cavalry, Captain Pierson, of Fort Sherman, will change station with Troop E, Lieutenant Allison, of this post.

Tacoma News Items.

TACOMA, Oct. 5.—The question of allowing saloons on Tacoma avenue was the most important one before the city council to-night. The question of the vacation of Cliff avenue, between Twelfth and Thirteenth streets, and dividing the land between the Northern Pacific Railway Company and the Trust Company, also came up. Both matters were deferred one week.

A young man named Owen Crosboy was shot and fatally injured on C street by footpads late this evening, while going home. There is no clue to the highwaymen.

A Break For Liberty.

TACOMA, Oct. 5.—Albert Tait, the waiter husband of the deaf mute whom Dr. Case is charged with forcibly taking advantage of, has been in jail for some time, being held as a witness after running away. This morning he was brought before the grand jury to give testimony in the case, and on his return made a break for liberty. There was an exciting chase for some time, but eventually Tait surrendered, on seeing a revolver pointed squarely at him. Tait is believed to be the ringleader in an attempt to break jail some time ago.

Salem Notes.

SALEM, Oct. 5.—Articles incorporating the Meston & Dygers Book Manufacturing Company, of Portland, were filed with the secretary of state to-day by John J. Meston, N. Dygert, and George H. Durham. The capital stock is $20,000.

J. C. Miller left at the asylum to-day, an epileptic, Deliscus Johnson, of Euchre Creek, Curry county. The patient is a farmer, 30 years old, and unmarried. While under the active influence of his malady, he wants a shotgun, and to correct this his neighbors prescribed confinement.

Sailed for China.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 5.—The steamship Abyssinia, for China and Japan, sailed this morning with 33 saloon passengers, 2 second-class, 249 Chinese in steerage and 800 tons of cargo, and 1000 tons of coal from Departure bay.

THE DEED OF ASSASSINS

A Young Man of Tacoma Foully Shot Down.

THE VICTIM MARKED BY DEATH

A Profound Sensation Caused by the Arrest of a Prominent Democratic Politician of Pierce County.

TACOMA, Oct. 5.—"My God! I'm shot," were the words following a pistol shot heard on C street between Fourth and Fifth to-night at 11 o'clock.

The victim, Enoch Crosby, a plumber, was on his way home, which is on the corner of Fourth and C streets, when he was foully murdered. He was just opposite Mr. Baker's house on C street, when two men met him, and without a word one of them drew a revolver, and as the victim turned to run, the fatal shot was fired.

His cries were heard by all those living in the neighborhood, and upon being asked what was the matter he answered, "My God, I'm shot!" and started across the street. Immediately a number of men gathered around, and the victim was taken to the house of Mr. White, where he now lies without any hope of recovery.

The ball entered the back of the hip, and passing through the body, is close to the navel, having passed through the intestines. Mr. Crosby has been spitting and vomiting blood ever since lying down. Dr. Wintermute was called in, and did all he could for the patient.

The man attacked is a son of Captain Crosby, and is about 26 years of age, and had only been in the city a week, having come here from Puyallup.

There is no clue as yet to his assailants, but the police are doing everything in their power.

From all the facts it would seem to be a case of mistaken identity, as the victim was not asked to "hands up and deliver", or even told to stop, out upon sight was shot. The men doing it fled down C street, one turning and going down a steep embankment. The other ran down the street and hid under the Congregational church, but by the time the officers arrived he had fled.

The young man and his family being well known here, there is a great deal of excitement, and are anxious to see all the guilty parties caught and brought to justice.

WANTED IN LOS ANGELES.

Arrest of Secretary Hazzard, of the Democratic Central Club of Tacoma.

TACOMA, Oct. 5.—This evening about 7 o'clock the few citizens who heard of the arrest of George Hazzard, secretary of the democratic central club of Pierce county, were dumfounded and could hardly credit the report, but such proved to be only too true. He was arrested by one of Sheriff Price's deputies on the street, upon the requisition of the governor of California.

It seems that the present grand jury of Los Angeles county, California, found an indictment against Mr. Hazzard for the serious crime of grand larceny. The specific charge cannot be learned, as the jury is still in session.

Sheriff Martin Aguirre, of Los Angeles, is here with the requisition, and, being questioned, could give nothing more concerning the affair than the above facts. He will start south with his prisoner in a few days.

Mr. Hazzard has, during his residence in Tacoma, made many friends, all of whom feel that there is some grave mistake, and that Hazzard can, when brought to trial, prove his innocence. The friends of the prisoner will procure bail as soon as possible.

Mr. Hazzard was for some time a resident of Los Angeles, and came here from that city some two years ago, and it is for a crime alleged to have been committed during his residence there that he will be taken back.

A visit was made to the jail but an interview with the prisoner was denied and your correspondent was told that Hazzard would not be liberated on bail to-night, and possibly not to-morrow.

FROM BAKER CITY.

Congressman Hermann in the City—A Serious Fire.

BAKER CITY, Or., Oct. 5.—Hon. Binger Hermann, our able representative in congress, arrived in this city yesterday, and a committee of our citizens has been showing the distinguished visitor the sights. In company with I. Durkee and E. H. Mix, Mr. Hermann visited the fair grounds this forenoon. He was shown the waterworks and other improvements in the city during the day. He expresses himself quite freely regarding the wonderful progress of the Inland Empire, and especially at the growth of Baker City in the last two years. The new hotel and the Hellner three-story block, Mr. Hermann says, are a credit to any city, and are monuments of progress and enterprise. To-morrow Mr. Hermann goes to Union, from there to La Grande, and from the latter place to the Umatilla reservation.

FOR THE FAIR.

J. S. C., the trotting horse belonging to E. H. Mix, arrived in the city to-night from Walla Walla, where he made a record of 2:20 and beat V. B. DeLashmutt's Stemwinder. The stable of Mr. DeLashmutt is expected to-morrow, and everything points to a successful fair during the coming week.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT CALLED OUT.

A brush fire called out the entire fire department this evening, and the fire is still burning briskly just south of the town. Should the wind rise during the night, considerable damage might result.

TAKEN BACK TO TEXAS.

H. L. Tisk, sheriff of Parker county, Tex., departed with Ed Anderson, his prisoner, to-day. The story of Anderson's popularity here is all bosh, as Anderson was known to be one of the lowest type of "tin-horn" gamblers, and was known as "Squealing Charley." He had been in the city only two days when arrested.

SAMOA'S AWFUL DISASTER.

J. Ian P. Dunning Confirms Certain Statements That Were Doubted.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The Sun to-day prominently publishes a special from Middleton, Del., giving the text of a letter to his father from John Preston Dunning, the talented associated press reporter of San Francisco, who wrote the thrilling account of the disaster at Apia, Samoa. Dunning says the whole day formed a succession of heroic and patriotic events seldom if ever equaled. He vouches for the truth of the statement, which was slightly questioned in some circles, that the Trenton's band played the "Star Spangled Banner" during the storm, encouraging the marines, and that the Trenton's men cheered the British ship Calliope when she was making a fearful struggle against wind and wave.

THE CHICAGO SUBURBAN ACCIDENT.

A Verdict Rendered on the Loss of Life by the Coroner's Jury.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—The coroner's jury today finished the inquest in the recent suburban accident on the Rock Island road. Master Mechanic Twombly, who reinstated his son, Engineer Twombly, several times after the latter had been discharged for drunkenness, admitted that he had done so upon his own responsibility. The jury returned a verdict censuring the officials of the road severely, and taking strong grounds against allowing favoritism or kinship to endanger human life.

A BIT OF COLONIAL HISTORY.

Bishop Morris to Take Part in Celebrating the Memory of a Patriot.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 5.—Oregon, through one of its ministers will be given considerable prominence here the last of this month. Rev. B. Wistar Morris, bishop of Oregon, who married one of the descendants of Thomas Rodney, will prominently officiate at the ceremonies of the Rodney monument, which is being constructed here, and which will be unveiled October 30th with appropriate ceremonies. Chief Justice Comegys will preside, and ex-Secretary Bayard will deliver the address.

A bit of the history is as follows: Delaware had selected three of its citizens as delegates to the "declaration" convention at Philadelphia, Cesar Rodney, Thomas McKean and George Read. The latter was accused of a tory leaning. Rodney was at his Mayfield farm severely ill, when a message came to him from his friend McKean, saying that Read would certainly vote against the Declaration of Independence. This would have divided Delaware's vote. Sick as he was, the patriot mounted his horse and rode to Philadelphia in the teeth of a driving storm, arriving at the hall in time to join his vote with McKean's. Majority was the rule of representation, and Delaware's three votes went in favor of independence.

THE VISIT OF THE CZAR.

Extraordinary Precautions to Protect the Imperial Train.

BISMARCK TO HAVE A CONFERENCE

Latest Phases of European Diplomacy—Captain Wissman in Great Peril—The Kaiser's Visit to Turkey.

[Copyrighted Associated Press, 1889.]

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—Official telegrams received at Potsdam and the foreign office tonight say that the czar will start for Berlin Tuesday night. The chief of the czar's secret police passed through Berlin to-day on his way to Kiel. He is accompanied by the inspector of the Imperial trains. The czar's special train, ones owned by the Empress Eugenie, lies at the station here, having come from Wirballen. There are swarms of Russian police here, at Kiel and at the stations along the proposed route. Russian troops line the rails from Wirballen to Moscow. The precautions taken far excel those on the occasion of the former visit of the czar, and are due to his intense fear of an attempt upon his life. The czarina leaves Copenhagen October 12 for Konigsberg, rejoining the czar at some point on the homeward journey.

Under the pressing solicitations of Count Schouvaloff, the Russian ambassador to Germany, the czar will accord Prince Bismarck the desired interview.

As soon as the promise of a conference was received the semi-official press was instructed to deny the statement that the government intended to apply to the reichstag for a military credit of several hundred millions of marks. Tonight the National Gazette turns upon itself, declaring that no money demands of any importance were ever contemplated by the government. The statement that the movement of Russian troops threatened the safety of the frontier is likewise pronounced exaggerated.

An uneasy feeling appears to prevail in Austrian official circles, it being feared that the chancellor is about to make a new move by offering to assist in restoring Russian dominance in Bulgaria as an inducement to draw the czar from the French alliance.

NOTES.

Princess Margaret, sister of the emperor, is betrothed to Prince William, the heir of the duke of Nassau. Her mother favored the suit of the crown prince of Denmark, while Bismarck favored the prince of Nassau.

Lieutenant Fischer, with two batteries of artillery, has sailed from Hamburg to reinforce Captain Wissmann in East Africa. The alarm over Captain Wissmann's position increases. He is threatened by large bodies of well armed Arabs and natives, who are cutting off his supplies.

The preparations being made at Constantinople for the reception of Emperor William indicate a prolonged stay. It is reported that he will remain two weeks at the Turkish capital. He will be accompanied by Count Herbert Bismarck. The length of the emperor's visit is attributed to an intention to inquire into the condition of the Turkish army, and to test the statement of German officers that the Porte is still able to maintain a standing army of 200,000 men.

M. Herbert, the French ambassador, returned to Berlin last evening. It is reported that he will be replaced by Jules Ferry. In spite of some displeasing acts of Ferry while in power, Bismarck is ready to accept him.

CABLE NOTES.

A Protest From the Orangemen.

BELFAST, Oct. 5.—Dr. Kane, grand master of the orangemen, for the district of Belfast, in a published card, warns Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, that he will alienate the Orangemen if he proposes any further endowment of Catholic institutions in Ireland. "The government ought rather," continues Dr. Kane, "to confer its privileges and emoluments upon every Orange hall in Ireland, as a sign of gratitude to the 150,000 Orangemen's pledges to maintain the union."

Collision at Sea.

GLASGOW, Oct. 5.—The steamer State of Georgia, for New York, has returned, having been in a collision with the coasting steamer Agate. A heavy fog prevailed. The Agate's forecastle head is smashed. The Georgia's bow was stove and one man was killed. The damage to the vessels was all above water line.

A Fatal Train Wreck.

ROME, Ga., Oct. 5.—A freight train on the Decatur railroad was wrecked near here to-day. The fireman and a negro brakeman were killed, and the engineer was fatally injured.

Net Earnings of the Canadian.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The Canadian Gazette estimates the net earnings of the Canadian Pacific railway this year as equivalent to 3½ per cent. on the capital stock.

Still Striking.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Laborers in a wool warehouse have struck, owing to the preference given blacklegs. It is feared the strike will spread.

The Work of a Lady Teacher.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The case of Chin Bon Pon, a laundryman of San Francisco, and New York, charged by his younger brother, Chin Yon Pon, with intending to decamp to China via San Francisco while owing him $165 was settled to-day by the withdrawal of the suit by the younger brother, a member of the Chinese Sunday school here. The settlement of the suit was brought about by a female teacher.

Robbery at Centralia.

CENTRALIA, Oct. 5.—Thursday morning between 10 and 11 o'clock, a gold watch and chain valued at $85, also a pair of gold bracelets and $2 50 in cash, were stolen from the City bakery. The property belonged to Mrs. John Mills. No clue to the robbers has yet been found.

A Miners' Strike Settled.

OSAGE CITY, Kas. Oct. 5.—The miners' strike at Scranton was amicably settled there to-day. The employers granted them an advance of 10 cents per ton in mining.

Steamer Movements.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Arrived—Steamers City of Chicago and Etruria from Liverpool, and the Alpha from Bremen.

BLAINE WILL PRESIDE.

The South American Opposition Not Material.

MOVEMENTS OF THE DELEGATES

San Francisco Merchants Desirous of the Consideration by the Congress of the Nicaragua Canal Question.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The published statement of discord in the international American congress, and threatened withdrawal of the Chilian and Argentine delegates because Blaine was elected president, originated, it is said with Delegate William H. Trescott, who is deeply piqued over the defeat of his design to be himself elected president of the congress.

The facts are: Senor Romero, of Mexico, at an informal meeting of the foreign delegates Monday, suggested Blaine for president. Senor Varas and Jose Alfonso, Chilian representatives, were represented as then leading the onslaught on Blaine. Jose Alfonso at that time was not in this country, and only arrived in New York Thursday. So temperate were Senor Varas's object one that he dined with Blaine the following evening. The duties warmly the occasion did not have been published.

Nevertheless, Senor Varas did object to Blaine's election as president, and was supported by the Argentine delegates, on the ground that he was not a member of the congress and could not therefore properly preside. Their objections were fully discussed by the other delegates, who in the end ratified to Blaine.

A supplemental story is being telegraphed from here, which ascribes a feeling of hatred on the part of the Chilian delegates to Blaine on account of his part in the disputes over the guano beds in 1881, and his attempted arbitration of the quarrel between Peru and Chili. It is also alleged that Chili is largely under English influences, Chilian bonds being held by Englishmen.

THE AMERICAN CONGRESS.

Movements of the Delegates Great Benefits Hoped for in Brazil.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 5.—The Pan-American congress reached here, and, after being shown about the city, took the train for Waltham. The first stop was made at Waltham, where the watch company served an elegant lunch after which the visitors inspected the works.

From there they went to South Framingham, where all the population of the town, aside from the factory workers, appeared to have turned out. School children dressed in holiday clothes were drawn up in a double line. When the delegates passed through, little girls stepped forward and pinned a boutonniere on the lapel of each gentleman's coat. The selectmen presented a set of resolutions, handsomely engrossed in Spanish and English. The party then went through the rubber factory.

A short stop was made at Ashland, where the boot and shoe works are visited, after which the party returned to Boston.

The Commercial club gave the members of the international conference a banquet tonight at the Parker house. Besides the delegates, many prominent men were present, including Senator Hoar and Edward Everett Hale. Several speeches were made.

Delegate Zegarra, of Peru, spoke warmly of the generous reception accorded the conference in the United States, saying that he had entirely forgotten that they were strangers.

Delegate Peraza, of Venezuela, humorously recited the wonders of the journey of the past three days. One of the striking things to the visitors was the study of the simple government at Washington, and of the constitution, that marvel of democratic institutions. He said that superficially the idea of the conference seemed to arise from the human mind, but in reality it was a conception of the spirit of progress.

BLAINE'S SPEECH PUBLISHED IN BRAZIL.

RIO DE JANEIRO, (Via Galveston), Oct. 5.—The newspapers throughout Brazil publish in full Secretary Blaine's address to the delegate to the international congress. The publication is hopeful of great commercial benefits resulting from the congress.

AT BUENOS AYRES.

BUENOS AYRES (Via Galveston), Oct. 5.—Blaine's address of welcome to the guests of the international congress was published in the newspapers in this country. The daily reports of the movements of the delegates are read with much interest.

THE NICARAGUA CANAL.

San Francisco Merchants Anxious to Have It Discussed by the Congress.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—It is expected and hoped by the merchants here that the Nicaragua canal project will be one of the topic brought up for favorable consideration by the international congress now in session in Washington.

At the last reports the company had been ordered by the Nicaraguan government to cease operations, owing to a dispute between the governments of Nicaragua and Costa Rica, in reference to the use for canal purposes of the San Juan river which for a short distance forms the boundary line between the two countries. Work was then about to go ahead on the construction of the narrow gauge road from Greytown, on the San Juan up to the first lock, a distance of eleven miles. The plan is to run the rock from the necessary lock excavations to the town, and there use it for the desired breakwater in forming a harbor. About 300 men were at Del Norte at the last reports. Meantime the shops, hospital and necessary houses have been built, and all is in readiness to push the work along as soon as the dispute referred to is amicably arranged.

THE KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

A Pleasant Reception in Chicago to the California Delegates.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The grand master of the Knights Templar of Rome arrived in this city this afternoon, and took headquarters at the Ebbitt house. During the evening the grand commandery of Nebraska, commanded by Mr. Lewis M. Keen, reached the city, and, under the escort of the local commandery, marched to their headquarters.

THE CALIFORNIANS.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Golden Gate commandery of the Knights Templar of San Francisco, held a reception at the Palmer house, this morning. The parlors were profusely decorated. A large number called to pay their respects. At noon, the commandery boarded the train, and held another reception on the observation coach. The commissary car was thrown open to exhibit the products of Pacific fruits. Visiting Knights and citizens generally attended the latter reception, and were made to feel at home. A large crowd was at the depot to bid farewell. The Golden Gates departed on their special at 1:30 o'clock, via the Baltimore and Ohio railway, direct for Washington.

The Tillamook Rock Telegraph Line—Land Office Notes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The secretary of the treasury has awarded the contract for furnishing material and labor for the construction of the telegraph line between Tillamook rock light station and Fort Stevens, Or., to J. M. Klein, San Francisco, for the furnishing of the submarine cable, and to the Sunset Telephone and Telegraph Company, of San Francisco, for the construction of the land lines.

Julius C. Lorenjoy has been appointed fourth-class postmaster at Ruby, Okanogan county, Wn., vice G. J. Hurley, resigned.

The secretary of the interior has approved the action of the commissioner of the general land office in the case of William Campbell, whose application to purchase the townsite of Port Angeles, Wn., had been rejected the land having been reserved for hospital purposes.

Commissioner Groff, of the general land office, has issued an order to the chiefs of divisions, clerks and employes of the general land office, forbidding them to give to newspaper correspondents any official information whatever respecting the business and workings of the office. Such information as may be proper to be given out will be furnished by the commissioner.

IN THE CIVIL SERVICE.

An Official Denial of Recent Adverse Statements.

A TYPICAL SPOILS SYSTEM

Commissioner Roosevelt's Report on the Baltimore Postoffice—A Remarkable Record of Removals and Incompetency.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Civil Service Commissioner Lyman was interviewed to-day by a representative of the Associated Press, and was asked if he had anything to say concerning the publication in this morning's Washington Post.

He replied that his preference was for a thorough investigation by a competent tribunal rather than any explanation or defense in the newspapers. Pending such an investigation, he would say that the statement that the set of papers given out by Campbell were current papers given out in advance of the examination was untrue. They were papers, he said, that had been previously used, such as the commission now publishes in its annual reports. As soon, he said, as the investigation made at the time by the commission developed the fact of Campbell's connection with the transaction, he saw the impropriety of his taking part in it, and said so to Commissioner Oberly, who concurred with him, and he thereupon left it to be completed by him, requesting that he get at the bottom facts. He subsequently reported to Lyman what he had found and his conclusion, that Campbell should not be removed, but reprimanded.

"I expressed my satisfaction with his conclusions," said Lyman, "based upon the statement of the case as made to me by him. This matter occurred nearly two years ago, and has not since been the subject of consideration by the commission.

"I desire," he added "to make one other statement now, and that is that there never at any time has been an appointment or promotion made on the office of the commission in violation, or evasion, of the civil service rules. In every case the rules have been scrupulously complied with, as the records will clearly show."

Roosevelt said: "The charges, in so far as they are directly made, refer wholly to matters affecting the commission, when Messrs. Edgerton and Oberly were members thereof. They do not touch anything done in the commission, and happened before I took office. They should certainly be investigated before a competent tribunal, and, as they affect the management of the commission, as under the administration that tribunal should contain democrats as well as republicans. In other words, the matter should be acted upon by congress as soon as it meets, and I not only countenance such an investigation but will regard it as a real misfortune if it does not take place. As regards anything that has been done since I myself came upon the commission, the accusations have been carefully put in the form either of innuendoes or of sweeping generalities, so I shall merely say that any accusations of misconduct on the part of the commission during my term of service are false, and I particularly desire to see others do so before a tribunal where they must speak under oath.

A TYPICAL SPOILS OFFICE.

Commissioner Roosevelt's Report on the Baltimore Postoffice.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Theodore Roosevelt, of the civil service commission, has submitted to the full commission a report of the examination made by him into the management of the Baltimore postoffice.

The report says: "During the last four years there has been two heads of the Baltimore postoffice, Mr. Veazey, who held the office about a year and was then allowed to resign, and his successor, the present incumbent, F. Brown. Veazey was one of those products of the patronage system whose antics would be comic were it not for their tragic effect upon the public service and honest political life, and great allowance should be made for Brown, because of the condition in which he found the office when handed over to him by his predecessor, for all the evidence tends to show that Veazey's administration can only be characterized as scandalous. It seems likely that he habitually and grossly violated the law, both as to appointments and removals. He certainly during his year of office turned out four-fifths of the old employes and filled the place with men, many of them of such evil character as to greatly demoralize the service. Of the original force of the office about 98 per cent. have been changed during the last four years. Most of this change is due to Veazey. So demoralized were affairs when Brown took hold that he was forced to dismiss over one-half of Veazey's appointments. Even more extraordinary is the fact that he was compelled to dismiss more than one-fifth of his own.

"One result of the system is shown by the seemingly almost universal payment of campaign assessments at election times. Almost all of the clerks who were questioned admitted that they had voluntarily paid last fall for campaign purposes sums ranging from 2 to 4 per cent. of their salaries."

Mr. Roosevelt recommends as a proper course of action for the future in all such cases, if in the classified service an appointing officer has made a "clean sweep" in an office, as where 90 odd per cent. of the old employes have been dismissed, or if he has removed, or is removing, a very large percentage of the employes, whether 80 per cent. or a less number, but at any rate one so large as to make it evident that the removals have been for political reasons, and if no can give no adequate and satisfactory reasons therefor that he should be deemed to have violated the civil service law and should be himself dismissed, or his resignation requested.

The report has been forwarded to the postmaster general signed by the full commission, who append their approval.

CHICO, Cal., Oct. 5.—This morning the people of Chico turned out en masse and gave Senator and Mrs. Stanford a royal reception. A committee of citizens and military escorted the senator and his wife from the depot to General Bidwell's mansion where the public had been invited to attend and assist in the reception. Two bands of music were in attendance, and about a thousand school children, who showered the senator's carriage with flowers as it passed through the grounds.

General Bidwell delivered the address of welcome.

The senator replied in part and in substance as follows: "I can only make a short reply to the eloquent address. As to the accumulation of wealth, let me say that I have never known what it was to have enough to carry out the work I had planned. I do not value money for itself, but for what it can accomplish, although from childhood I have worked hard. When I look around me and mark the progress of the state and the country, I am impressed with the possibilities of humanity. Man's wants are as boundless as his capacity to conceive. Civilization has made more progress in the last hundred years than in all the preceding centuries. This is largely due to the intelligent application of machinery. The printing press may be said to have been the great work of civilization. By it ideas have been disseminated and become common property. Through the daily press a man sits at his desk and can sound the mind of the people. He can then suggest enterprises which some man of means may carry out. Through the intelligence of one man who watched the throb of a tea-kettle the world acquired the knowledge of the mighty power of steam. When I look around me and note the forces of nature, I cannot help seeing how great is the beneficence of the Creator. The material for everything that man wants is supplied by him. All that is needed is intelligent labor and physical ability to make use of this material. The supply is inexhaustible. Although each one of my hearers possessed a mansion such as this, the material would not be diminished in proportion. The possibilities of humanity are the realization of the beneficence of the Creator. I sometimes think that ministers should be the great teachers of this idea. It would be easy for them to illustrate these possibilities and these beneficences. Ministers, might, I think, with advantage undertake the search of things temporal as well as religious, and thus raise up the condition of the people. I have great faith in the good that can be accomplished in this direction by the schools we are endeavoring to establish. In founding the institution in Palo Alto, Mrs. Stanford and I have an idea that we can improve the system of education. I hope the institution will be the educator of educators. I realize that it is a huge undertaking, but if I live long enough I hope to give this character to the school. I hope I shall live some time yet. I do not care, however, as I have firm fa

HEAVY FIRE AT NEVADA.

Losses Aggregate About $45,000, With Light Insurance.

NEVADA, Cal, Oct 5—Forty thousand dollars worth of property insured for $11 000 was destroyed by fire here early this morning The dwelling house of J E Isaac was burned and the adjoining building damaged about 2 30 o clock and just as this fire was under control another blaze was discovered at Bowerman's paint shop, on the plaza four blocks away In a few minutes the paint shop and several other buildings were enveloped in flames, which spread rapidly, and extended to the dwelling houses of John Dunnecliff Thomas Mahoron and Mrs Kate stover, Gehrig's brewery and dance academy, Solaris & Scudden's saloon, the store of Neizenburger Bros, and dozens of other buildings, all of which were reduced to ashes The heaviest loss was sustained by George Gehrig, it being $20,000

Two tramps were arrested on suspicion of starting the fire at the plaza but there is no evidence against them aside from their being on the street at the time the fire was discovered

Carefully revised estimates show that the losses by this morning's fires are $46 500, insurance $11,500

The tramps arrested on suspicion have been liberated

A BANKER IN PRISON.

Charged With Obtaining Notes Under False Pretenses.

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 5—Willis N Fos a private banker here, was arrested this evening and now languishes in jail on a charge of obtaining notes under false pretenses The charges were preferred by Dr Deming Smith a practicing physician who came here from England eight teen months ago Directly after arriving he placed on deposit with Fos $2500 in diamonds and $600 in money, Mrs Smith having occasion to use the diamonds on several occasions, drew them out and Fos compelled her to sign receipts, which now turn out to be promissory notes bearing 50 per cent interest and 100 per cent. attorney fees if not paid A month ago Dr Smith attempted to draw out his money having become suspicious, Fos thereupon presented notes to the amount of $3000 to be paid before giving up the jewelry and cash.

The district attorney laid the facts before the grand jury, who returned an indictment and Fos was sent to jail in default of $25 000 bail.

A Chinese Murderer Captured.

SAN FRANCISCO Oct. 5—Late last night two policemen of the Chinatown force were approached by a Chinese woman, who pointed out a Chinaman standing close by, named Chin Sun, and said that he was a murderer.

An investigation proved that the woman was correct. The prisoner is wanted in San Jose for killing a countryman named Jack Hong, on a ranch, with a hatchet. He was arrested and taken to San Jose to-day

The facts of Hong's death, which much resemble those of Dr Cronin's death at Chicago, appear to be as follows On the morning of August 18 two white men employed by one Parsons, Jack Hong and his two helpers, engaged in an altercation but nothing was thought of the matter for several days. The Chinamen not being seen about the place, their cabin was visited and found deserted No thought of foul play was entertained until ten days later, when the Chinese interpreter here and a relative of Jack Hong brought the matter to the notice of the police, who made a close search, reporting the finding of the body of Jack Hong doubled up in a hole four feet long and three feet deep, and literally hacked to pieces with a hatchet. The hole had been carefully filled, the surplus of dirt removed and the top covered with ashes and litter, until no sign remained.

MONTANA DEMOCRATIC.

With the Exception of Carter, Who Goes to Congress.

DEMOCRACY HAS THE GOVERNOR

And in All Probability the Legislature by From Five to Nine Majority—A Contest Promised by the Republicans

HELENA Mont. Oct 5—The Independent says The returns received to day give the democrats a majority of seven on joint ballot in the legislature, with one in doubt, which may increase the majority to nine In several counties the vote was very close, but it is not thought that the official canvassing will make any material change Carter, (republican) has been elected to congress by a majority of about 1200

REPUBLICANS STILL DOUBTFUL.

ST PAUL, Oct 5—A Pioneer Press special from Helena says While the republicans are almost ready to concede both the governorship and the legislature to the democrats they will not do so until the official count is made for the reason that the result is so close as to warrant them in claiming at least the legislature Several country precincts no fully was made of the votes except that made by the judges of election and those are now valid and in the hands of the various county clerks, awaiting the official count.

The democrats elect the governor and the majority of the legislature, but by margins so narrow that the full count may upset either Individual republicans concede the governor to the democrats and are half convinced that the legislature is democratic, but the republican press and state committee concede neither The republicans now claim the legislature by one of two, while the democrats claim it by from five to seven

A curious condition of affairs prevails among the sporting fraternity owing to the close election Although Carter Rep is elected to congress by a majority of 1000 over Maginnis Dem, the democrats will not give up any bets on Carter's election until the republicans give up the money on the governor As a contest is hinted at over the latter, the republicans who bet on Power wisely refuse to pay their bets until it is decided who is the man, while about $70,000 remains in the hands of the stakeholders here and at Butte

A FAMOUS CASE DISMISSED

Opinion in the Electric Light Suit of Westinghouse Against Edison

PITTSBURG Oct. 5—In the United States court to day Justice Bradley of the United States supreme court handed down an opinion dismissing the famous electric light case of the Westinghouse interests against the Edisonport or Edison Electric Light Company to restrain the defendants from using the fibrous carbon of local descent conductor in an air tight globe The court holds that the claim to priority of invention in the fibrous carbon filament is not valid as Edison had accomplished the result before the Westinghouse company had begun its use

The Westinghouse company will appeal the case to the full bench of the United States supreme court

THE WESTINGHOUSE PATENTS.

The Company's Interests Not at All Injured by Yesterday's Decision

NEW YORK Oct 5—The decision of Judge Bradley, declaring the Sawyer and Saunders carbon lamp patent invalid was announced in Pittsburg this morning

In an interview George Westinghouse jr, president of the Westinghouse Electric Company, makes the following statement regarding the decision

This decision leaves the Westinghouse company just where it was before and can not under any circumstances affect it adversely although of course we would have much preferred a different result We have strong hopes of obtaining a favorable decision from the supreme court of appeals but whatever happens our company will still be able to manufacture and sell incandescent electric lamps as freely as it did before and our customers can continue to purchase of us with perfect safety The worst that can happen is that the incandescent lamp might finally be declared public property, as is already the case with the arc lamp It should be remembered that this decision affects only one of our many patents We own several others covering the essential details in the manufacture of incandescent lamps, which we feel confident of sustaining and all users and makers of lamps not licensed by us must infringe The strength of our patent position even with this decision against us, is evidenced by the fact that under the contract with us the Thomson Houston Electric company will have to pay us the same royalties as before this decision while the Edison Company will if the decision is affirmed by the supreme court destroy the Sawyerman fibrous carbon filament patent. They have no patent for the same themselves In fact, they will still have to face our patents on the other features of the incandescent lamp Therefore while this decision is against us it is not in favor of Mr Edison or his patents

The business and profits of the Westinghouse Electric Company will not be adversely affected by this decision On the contrary, if the impression gets abroad that the incandescent lamp has become public property the demand for incandescent lighting will be greatly increased and our company will come in for its share of the increase The strongest advantage in favor of the Westinghouse Company in the lamp trade has always been its unequaled facility for manufacturing the best lamps at the lowest cost, and this advantage will remain with us whatever happens to our patents and we are confident insure for us a constantly increasing proportion of the trade

THE A. T. & S. F.

An Attempt by the Directors to Reach a Plan of Reorganization.

BOSTON, Oct. 5—The directors of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad met at 10 o'clock and are still in session This is undoubtedly the most important meeting since its organization It is stated as being very doubtful if the plan of reorganization will given out before next week

PRESS COMMENT.

NEW YORK Dec 5—The Post says to day editorially on the situation of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad which has more mileage than any other railroad in the United States It is difficult to see how all the conflicting interests can be arranged, except through a receiver Suppose a receiver is appointed whose first duty appears to be to cut away from the system the most unprofitable lines Suppose he asks the court to relieve him of the Gulf, Colorado & Chicago lines and the request we will say, is acceded to The decisions that have been made in the recent Wabash cases seem to show that it would be easy for the receiver to throw off the guarantee of the Atchison on either or both of these roads Taking each road thus in its merits, what would the bonds be worth? What has been briefly suggested about these two affiliated roads may be said, with modifications, of others now in the Atchison system How shall all of these dangers and difficulties be expressed in the sealing down so as to do justice to all the lines, in accordance with their real values to the system and how and by whom shall these values be determined?

A Young Desperado Killed.

GUTHRIE Ind T Oct 5—Charles Davis aged only 19 years but one of the boldest desperadoes in Indian Territory, and the leader of a noted band of horse and cattle thieves was shot and killed yesterday near Fleetwood, Ind T He had barricaded himself in a vacant house, guarded by three deputy United States marshals Later he made a break for liberty, carrying in either hand a revolver The deputies opened fire which the desperado returned but soon fell to the ground mortally wounded

TALES FROM TACOMA.

Scratching Indulged in by Pierce County Republicans.

A DRUM THAT IS HARD TO BEAT

A Few Interesting Facts About the Election—The Selection of United States Senators—Sale of the Tacoma Rapid Transit

TACOMA Oct 5—It is safe to say that the republican ticket in Pierce county will never be jeopardized again as it was at the polls last Tuesday Everybody knows what placed that ticket in jeopardy and what caused five or six hundred staunch republicans to scratch men off the legislative ticket who were considered unfit to represent an intelligent constituency in the first legislature of the new state.

When another republican county convention is held here it will probably be presided over by somebody other than H M Ellis and it will not be run by James Wickersham Thomas L Nixon and Ben Everett' said a well known republican this morning.

Ellis, the only candidate for state senator on the republican ticket who was defeated, was the president of the recent republican county convention James Knox and M J Cochran candidates for the legislature were nominated by that convention, Cochran may still squeeze through If he does it will relieve the republicans of a heap of trouble in the legislature because steve Judson, of Steilacoom, his opponent, is the most persistent noisest and brainiest democrat in the territory Cochran is a lawyer a man of no mean ability formerly of Medicine Lodge Barbour county Kansas, and lived for a while in Colorado It is not necessary to go into the reasons why part of the republican ticket was so mercilessly slaughtered The majority party here was thoroughly disgusted with the nominations and but for the fact that two United States senators were to be chosen by the legislature there would have been considerable more cutting and slashing than was indulged in

It has become paradoxical in Tacoma that you can not beat a Drum or at least Henry Drum the good looking blue eyed democratic young ex mayor of the city He snowed Mr Ellis under completely In fact so did all the democratic senatorial nominees Mr Drum is vice president of the Merchants National bank and a brother in law of Hon Walter J Thompson president of the same bank with whom he differs in politics Some of the committeemen of the republicans so irked at the defeat of Ellis Knox and possibly Cochran have started the report that Mr Thompson secretly aided the election of Drum which I learn from good authority is falsehood Had he good a man as either John B Baker and L L Thompson (elected senators on the republican ticket) been nominated in place of Ellis it is possible that the Drum could have been beaten

Judson Applegate, the opponent of Judge Frank Allyn for superior judge is a staunch republican and an estimable gentleman He has resided in Tacoma since last February and is a property holder here but, save a republican worker the liquor men started a story that he was a prohibitionist and this interest was in the language of the saloon 'dead against him' and, along with other complications, including secret societies the Northern Pacific interest and Tacoma hoteldudes, Mr Applegate was defeated Judge Allyn, however is a fair man and the people of the county are satisfied with his election.

The election for two United States senators is much nearer than many people suppose The law requires the legislature to ballot for these officials as soon as organized The constitution of the new state as adopted last Tuesday requires the legislature to assemble on the 6th day of next month at Olympia so that balloting for the senator will begin on or about the 7th or 8th of November In the meantime President Harrison, after scanning the constitution will issue his proclamation admitting the state of Washington into the Union That it will be the coming great state of the Union goes without saying and that Tacoma is the largest city of not only the state of Washington but of the four new states is settled Why? Its vote in the four wards of the city was the largest vote cast of any other political corporation in the four new states It has increased in population comparing the vote cast last spring and the vote cast on Tuesday, 115 per cent and hundreds of voters were unable to cast their votes at the recent election because of the early closing of the polls (6 o clock) and hundreds of other new comers were not eligible because they were not here the required length of time

Henry L Wilson of Spokane Falls brother of John L Wilson, the congressman elect who was a strong candidate for United States marshal of the new state, has withdrawn his application for that position and is no longer in the field The position of United States marshal and United States district attorney are still hung up for some reason or other at the national capital, and the offices are still in the hands of the democrats Thad Huston, of Tacoma, and R B Albertson of Seattle, are the leading candidates for the position of United States district attorney with the chances in favor of the former Huston has been a well-known lawyer in Tacoma for three years past has always been a staunch republican, is a wounded veteran of the war though but 44 years of age, and is an effective stump speaker During the recent campaign he stumped the counties of Lewis Cowlitz Pacific, Chehalis and Thurston Albertson, who is city attorney of Seattle, is an able young lawyer with a good practice

The other day Nelson Bennett of this city, walked into The Tacoma and announced that he along with other capitalists, had purchased that hostelrie The announcement fell upon some of the resident members of the Tacoma Land Company like what the Omaha reporter would call a dull thud Bennett had been East and saw Charles G Wright, of Philadelphia, the founder of Tacoma and largest stockholder of the land company Mr Wright was glad to sell, because it is said that the bulk of his small matter has been complaints against the hotel If anybody had a grudge against a bell boy didn't have a pillow soft enough in his bed or was not treated with the distinguished consideration he thought he deserved he immediately sat down and wrote to Mr Wright about it instead of going to Mr Tyler, who knows how to keep a hotel

That it is the finest hotel property in the Pacific northwest is well known The syndicate paid $250 000 for it This year the hotel will clear $70 000 It has been crowded cot room only" for about eighteen months. One of the syndicate is General C H T. Collis who commanded the Collis Zouaves of Philadelphia during the war and is a member of the New York and Philadelphia stock exchange and of the firm of Collis & Levy Another is Hon Walter J Thompson The Tacoma Land Company I understand, is going to build another hotel that will compete by throwing in the shade anything ever seen on the continent in that line Tacoma has thirty one hotels, two of which 'The Tacoma' and 'The Rochester' are first class and all of which are paying It is better equipped with hotels than with six railway cars The Villard syndicate which has been laboring for six months to lay down rails and start decent cars, promises to be ready by the 1st of December One of their new cars, just one, has arrived already and it is said to be real pretty. Tacoma would have had at least two thousand more inhabitants to-day if there had been street railway lines extending back up the hills It is an awful monopoly and its got its grip firmly on the 'City of Destiny" and will continue to have until there is a city council elected with some nerve Bennett's purchase of 'The Tacoma' is in keeping with his usual luck What he touches generally turns to gold He is making a second Tacoma out of the city of Fairhaven on Bellingham Bay and is building a railroad from British Columbia through Fairhaven to Tacoma. It will be finished before the year Mark this prediction C M F

Army Appointments.

WASHINGTON, Oct 5—Three vacancies in the staff departments of the army were filled to day by the following appointments Lieutenant George H Hoyt, Eighteenth infantry, to be assistant quartermaster, with the rank of captain Lieutenant Henry B Osgood Third artillery and General L W Alexander, of Iowa to be commissaries of the subsistence department, with the rank of captain

General Alexander enlisted in the Thirtieth Iowa infantry in August, 1862, was appointed first lieutenant the following month and captain in September 1863, and was mustered out August 16 1865, having been wounded in an engagement in January 1863 He is now and has been for the past eleven years adjutant general and quartermaster general of Iowa His selection from civil life was strongly urged by the senators and representatives from Iowa It is said that the fact that out of something over five hundred officers in the general staff only four of them are from Iowa had a strong influence in determining this appointment Two of the 6 are in the engineer corps virtue of that class stand one in the pay department and one in the [illegible]

THE DEBT OF THE PACIFIC ROADS

Meeting of the Committee Appointed to Effect a Settlement

CHICAGO Oct 5—The committee appointed to effect a settlement between the government and the Pacific roads held a preliminary meeting this afternoon to arrange details as to the work

Our desire is to be reasonable with the companies said Senator Hearst, "or at least mine is If we can arrange to secure the debt in some way and provide for its payment in forty or fifty years we shall be satisfied The roads will not be sacrificed, though under any circumstances as we could not afford to stop the traffic of the country, even for such a claim as this

THE PORK WAR.

Violation of the Injunction Issued at Chicago.

CHICAGO Oct 5—The war between the brokers squeezed in the pork corner and the Chicago Board of Trade continues In court this morning Broker Wallace filed an affidavit stating that the International Packing Company had violated the injunction served upon them yesterday Wallace had contracted to buy 250 barrels of the company, and in spite of the order of the court restraining the delivery of the pork the company offered to make the delivery, and upon Wallace's refusal of the tender, sold the pork at auction, under the rules The company then sent a bill to Wallace for margins.

THE TEXAS & FORT WORTH.

It Is Definitely Decided That the Union Pacific Will Lease the Line.

OMAHA, Oct 5—General M E Dodge, of the Texas & Fort Worth road, says, regarding the lease of the Fort Worth by the Union Pacific that, while it is not definitely arranged just now what way the Union Pacific will take hold of the line, it is decided definitely to make this its seaboard route He also said that the Union Pacific will build to California in all probability although the enabling act has not been passed by the directory Both matters will probably come before the directory in Boston

SENSATIONAL AND IMPROBABLE.

One Man Said to Have Committed Two Noted Murders

CHICAGO Oct 5—The Globe publishes a two-column article in which it is claimed that sufficient evidence has been discovered to show that Fred Schuneman, who was mysteriously shot about o'clock on the morning of August 30 1888 was murdered by the same person who murdered Millionaire Snell and the murder was committed because Schuneman had discovered who Snell's murderer was The article intimates that the murder was commit ed by a person whose name, if mentioned, would cause a sensation

A DEFICIT IN THE BANK RESERVE.

Caused by the Flow of Money to the West and the South.

NEW YORK, Oct 5—For the first time since the week following the May panic of 1884 the bank statement published shows the reserve held to be less than 25 per cent. of deposits required by the banking law A year ago, with almost exactly the same amount of deposits banks held a surplus over the legal requirements of $11 417 500 The deficit is almost wholly caused by the drain of money to the West and South, where over $6 000 000 was shipped last week, and almost as much went in the week just preceding

HE MONEY FOR THE LIBRARY.

Miss Smith Bequeaths Over $100,000 to the Association to Help It Along.

The will of the late Miss Ella M. Smith, whose death occurred a few days ago, has not been filed for probate but will be in a few days. Her estate, which is valued at between $175,000 and $200,000 is divided in a most liberal manner. She leaves between $100,000 and $125,000 to the Portland Library Association to aid it in the construction of its proposed new building, on the north half of the block bounded by Washington, Stark, Seventh and East Park streets, and to create the nucleus of an art gallery. She bequeaths $6,000 to the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society, to aid it in reclaiming errant youngsters, $500 to the Unitarian church, of which she was a member, $5000 to the Portland Women's Union, $5000 to the Ladies' Relief Society, $10,000 to a Maine relative, and several thousand dollars to friends who live in Portland.

PASCO ITEMS.

What Is Being Done at the Coming City at the Forks of the Columbia.

The steady and substantial improvements that are now going on in the town of Pasco are really marvelous. The place presents a very different appearance from what it did sixty days ago.

All the streets in the Pasco Land Company's addition are being cleared of sage brush. Teams are at work grading many of the streets, and it is the intention of the company to grade all streets where necessary.

Plank sidewalks and crossings are being put down.

Plans for a new and first-class hotel have been completed, and the work of construction will commence thereon during the coming week.

The new lumber company are selling lumber cheaper than they can deliver it.

There is more activity around the depot now than there ever was before in the history of the place.

Many new buildings are being constructed, and yet there is not a vacant building in the town.

A good hardware store is badly needed, as it is almost impossible to buy anything in that line. Everything in that line is bought by the car load as it arrives.

The Charles Reed Opera troupe passed through Pasco last Wednesday evening, and were so much pleased with the prospects of the town that during the stop of the train at the depot several members of the troupe visited the office of the Pasco Land Company and purchased six lots, which is probably only a beginning.

KEEP YOUR EYE ON PASCO.

THE ELECTRIC ROAD.

Cars Will Be Running Regularly to Fulton Park Early in November.

The road has progressed with remarkable rapidity since work was commenced, and it seems apparent that everything will be ready for operation early in the coming month. The power station and car houses at Fulton Park is almost completed, and the track will be laid through from G street to the central road. Most of the electric equipment has arrived, and the cars will soon be here.

It has been determined to make the rate of fare to Fulton Park only five cents. There can be no question but what the desirable rate over this line, low fare and frequent trips, will make this property very desirable for residence purposes.

The leveling of this road, considering the great cost, shows much confidence in the future prospects of the city, and the projectors of the enterprise deserve great credit for the energy shown.

HIGH ART IN PORTLAND.

Mission Made to Logging Works Owned by Salesmen's Sons.

"It is not an easy and thankful job to arrange an art exhibit in Portland," said a gentleman connected with the Exposition, yesterday. "The people are squeamish about hanging pictures owned by saloonkeepers and enormous objection was raised on this ground to Cirel, one of the finest painters on the Pacific coast, which itself is worth the price of admission to the Exposition. Edward Berger's 'Venetian Sunset,' the best of his big works, was objected to on the same ground. It is a fact that the finest paintings in the city are owned by saloonkeepers, and why they are objected to I do not understand. Another thing that has to be dealt with is the laziness of the local amateurs. They do not paint for any particular object but for exhibitors' tickets. With them it is merely a question of how many tickets they can get for a meritless daub, and the more the better. Next year it is likely that the art committee will deal with them in a more stringent manner."

JEWISH DAY OF ATONEMENT

Services Conducted All Day, Without Intermission, at the Synagogue.

Rabbi Bloch Declares That a Man Does Not Do His Full Duty to Judaism by Going to the Temple Once a Year.

Yom Kipper, the Jewish day of atonement, was appropriately observed in the Beth Israel synagogue yesterday. Rabbi J. Bloch conducted services, consisting of the chanting of ancient prayers and hymns and the reading of selections from the scripture, all day without intermission. At midday the Torah, or scroll, was taken with due solemnity, from the achal or ark of the covenant, and passages appropriate to the day were read. The most impressive event was the rendition of the memorial services, which were so pathetic that many were moved to tears and the rabbi himself was visibly affected.

Rabbi Bloch preached twice, at 10:30 A. M., and at 4 P. M. His morning subject was "The Mission of Man, Especially of the Jew." The afternoon discourse was a development of the same subject. The rabbi began with a short explanation of the day and by setting forth the inseparable connection of Judaism with charity. Taking up the subject of man's mission on earth, he said every man, whether prince or laborer, had a mission, and his true worth in the world was dependent upon his fulfillment of it. Therefore, to a certain degree, every man is a priest. He said there was a significance in the Day of Atonement beyond the mere wiping away of sin by abstaining from the necessities of life for one day—that of elevating the ideal, moral and spiritual nature, rather than the materialistic and real.

"People make a great mistake," the rabbi said, "when they imagine they do the full duty to Israel and Judaism by coming to the synagogue once or twice a year. This inertia is detrimental to the progress and development of the faith, and something must be done. Here we have a magnificent temple erected by the grace and to the power of God, and it cannot be filled at all times when services are held. The people must be drawn to the church. As an initiative step I have been promised the co-operation of a number of gentlemen, who have consented to deliver lectures in the synagogue on Friday evenings during the winter. I trust the people will encourage an effort so well calculated to awaken an interest in the synagogue."

TWO CHINAMEN LAID TO REST.

Members of Seid Beck's Fishing Expedition to Alaska—A Christian Burial.

Seid Beck yesterday buried two of his countrymen, who met death on the bleak shore of Alaska. Go Wing and Wong Yow were the only two lost of a crew of 117 who were sent to the Alaska canneries early in the summer. Go Wing, who was a Christian and leaves a Christian wife and children in the Flowery kingdom, died of dropsy August 10, and Wong Yow, who was shunned by his fellow-workers because they believed him to be afflicted with leprosy, committed suicide by hanging, the day following.

Both bodies arrived in the city by the way of San Francisco, two days ago, and the funerals were held in Dellin & Holman's undertaking rooms yesterday. They were accorded a decent Christian burial. Rev. John Gordon, of the First Baptist church, being the officiating clergyman.

The fishing expedition sent out by Seid Beck was unfortunately a failure. Sufficient material was sent for filling from 60,000 to 70,000 cases, but, owing to the heretofore unheard of scarcity of salmon, the men returned, having filled but 1700 cases. The expedition proved a financial loss.

PUSHING THE CABLE ROAD.

The Line Will Be Built North on Fifth Street to the Depots.

J. M. Thompson, who is superintending the construction of the cable road, is not allowing the grass to grow under his feet. The track has been laid on Fifth street, from Alder to Jefferson, and out Jefferson quite a distance. The roofing iron and rods for the power house have arrived. The plans for the building were finished yesterday, and work will begin on it next Wednesday. Men are now making the excavation. The boilers for the power house will arrive from San Francisco in a few days. The last lot of the machinery will be shipped from Cleveland, Ohio, on November 1. Mr. Thompson says it is the intention of the company to build down Fifth street to the railroad depots. When asked yesterday if the company would ask for other streets, he said:

"I will build this line first. I do not know what I may do then."

THE COWBOY TOURNAMENT.

Everything in Readiness for the Contest to Take Place To-Day.

All the preliminaries are completed for the tournament at the ball grounds this afternoon, and a most novel and exciting time is expected.

The contestants are here and show great eagerness and determination to excel in their respective contests. The broncos to be used are all "kalyuse"—have never been handled or ridden—and will afford the boys a good opportunity to test their skill. Some noted Oregon vaqueros will be in the saddle, so that this state will be well represented. Foremost among the latter is M. N. Gird, than whom a more intrepid or reliable "cowpuncher" is not easily found. That a large crowd will witness the novel affair goes without saying.

PASSENGER LISTS.

OVERLAND.

Oregon Short Line—Passed Shoshone, Oct. 5: H. M. Lawrence and wife, A. C. McCoy, D. Hargrove; Mr. Tillman and wife, R. J. Manior, E. D. Pullet and wife, C. B. Acon and daughter, T. E. Conner, M. Z. Brown, J. S. McCray and wife and seventy-four second class.

Northern Pacific—Passed Elliston, yesterday, to arrive here to-day: T. E. Lidwell and wife, C. M. King, Wm. G. Brown, Wm. R. Darock, Mrs. Linken, F. R. Sargent and wife, D. H. Herrick, C. A. Robertson, M. Smith, B. M. Anger, G. F. Roberts and wife, E. F. Hawes, Mrs. W. D. Halbert, J. M. Stevens and wife, S. B. Williams, J. J. Beeson and wife, and thirty-five second class.

Oregon & California—Passed Medford, October 5: H. S. Matts, Dr. Faulkner, Mr. Dodge, Mr. Rocker, Mr. Wheeler, R. Fritz, F. Lindsey, H. Sleman, G. W. Kerns and wife, M. C. Line, D. Swarts, H. Marx, Miss Brown, A. Brown, Mrs. Brown, R. Cole and wife, J. H. Smart, Mr. Rand, F. M. Johnson, H. Wolf and wife, Mrs. Gray and daughter, Mr. Hillsbury and wife, Miss Watts, Mrs. Hall, W. S. Ellis, wife and child, Mr. Clark, G. S. Coswell, Mr. Derry, R. Littlon, and fifty second-class.

STEAMER.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—Following is the passenger list of the steamer Columbia sailing to-day for Portland: C. A. Peters, C. C. Cooper, Miss Sprague, Mrs. McCoy, Geo. Bryand, Miss Johnson, H. L. Gilford, wife and two children, Miss Wallace, Miss Jones, E. Burke, Mrs. Joyce, Miss Kelley, J. Sherman, J. W. Elder, S. P. Carter, Miss Black, Miss Smith, J. Miller.

WHISKY-CRAZED, BUT ABLE TO FIGHT.

Three dozen sports gathered in the billiard room of an uptown saloon at 1:30 yesterday morning to see a fight to a finish with seven-ounce gloves, between a stoutly built rough visaged young fellow called "Hobo" and a slender boy known as Steugen. The stake was satisfaction. After the blinds had been drawn to shut off observance from the outside and the spectators cautioned to make no noise for fear of police interference, a referee and two timekeepers were chosen and the principals called out.

It was a great fake from the word go, and was fixed for Stongen to win. Hobo was filled with beerglasses of a mixture of whisky, beer, gin, brandy and claret. He was nearly crazy drunk when the light began, and whenever it was seen that he was beating Steugen he was given more of the concoction, which, instead of dooming him, made him more vicious, and it was with difficulty that he was kept in his corner during the resting bits.

Neither of the men had the first idea of science. Steugen handled himself better than the Hobo, but could not land with effect. In the seventh round he staggered the Hobo with a right-handed swinging blow on the neck, and had he followed it up he could have won the fight. In the ninth round the Hobo went at him manner and tongs, and upper cut him viciously. Steugen had barely strength enough to hold up his hand to show that he would give up. The fight was then given to the Hobo.

BEYOND THE WILLAMETTE.

Various News Notes Collected by the East Portland Reporter.

A Severe Fall—A Severe Test—Visiting Ministers—More Improvements—Should be Roofed—Blockaded—Roads Repairing.

Mr. A. H. Winsloy, who resides on U street in Stephenson addition, was very severely injured yesterday by a fall. He was leading a cow near an embankment, when the animal suddenly jumping jerked him over the bank. He fell with great force, striking on his side and received injuries from which he was suffering intensely last night. He is not considered seriously hurt, but it will be some time before he will be able to be out.

SAWMILL AND DRY HOUSE.

The Standard Box Factory Company are now building a sawmill and dry house on the south side of the factory for the express purpose of manufacturing their own lumber. Not being able to procure lumber at all times when wanted, the factory has been unable to fill all orders, and this led to the determination to put in a sawmill plant and avoid all such delays. The cost of the sawmill and dry house will be in the neighborhood of $5000, and the mill will have a capacity of from 20,000 to 25,000 feet of lumber per day. The lumber after being sawed will pass directly into the dry house, and thus within a few hours after the logs have been taken from the river they will be converted into boxes.

THE PASSENGER STATIONS.

The passenger stations of the Southern Pacific in East Portland may both do very well for dry weather, but in the winter they are not very creditable either for the city or for that company, and offend the eyes of both incoming and outgoing immigrants and strangers. The station at L street would be vastly improved if the platform, which extends from L to M streets, were inclosed. All the trains arriving from the south are very long, extending from M to K. Passengers, as a matter of course, are frequently compelled to alight on the platform in a rain storm, which is unpleasant. This platform should be covered with a roof.

THEY WANT WATER.

The people up Brooklyn Hights and Smith's and Tibbetts's additions are discussing the question of pure water. On the high ground there has been an actual famine in water, while on the low grounds, where well water is used almost exclusively, there has been and is a great amount of sickness, such as fever and diphtheria, caused, so it was stated, by the impurity of the water. If the East Portland Water Company would extend a main large enough to supply Brooklyn and the two additions named more than 100 water consumers could be obtained, as in that event the wells would be abandoned.

STREET BLOCKADED.

Yesterday morning the Southern Pacific train extended from the south side of M street to K street and M street was blocked up for about twenty minutes. During that time three street cars and eighteen vehicles were compelled to wait for the train to move on. When one of the main avenues of business is closed up for the short space of twenty minutes, it causes a great inconvenience.

LIBRARY AND BILLIARD ROOMS.

The Rev. Father Verhaag, of St. Francis (Catholic) church, is having built just back of his residence, on Eleventh and I streets, a two-story building, twenty-five by fifty feet. The first floor will be arranged for a library, reading and billiard rooms, and the upper part will be fitted for an entertainment and amusement hall. The institution will be for the benefit of the members of his church.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

While the logs on Fourth street were being moved to the vacant block on Fifth street, one of the workmen got in the way and a log rolled on his right knee. It was reported that his leg was broken, but as his physician was not seen, this information was not confirmed. His name was not learned.

TWENTY TONS ON THE BRIDGE.

The motor and cars that were taken over Fifth street bridge a few days ago weighed twenty tons instead of twelve tons, as was stated. The test of the structure, therefore, was a severer one than was at first supposed.

CLASSES TO BE ORGANIZED.

The various classes to be taught of evenings in the Y. M. C. A. rooms the coming winter will be organized next Tuesday evening, October 8. This is an opportunity for young men for self-improvement.

VISITING MINISTER.

The Rev. C. D. Ellis, of Salem, is in the city, and will preach to-day in the Baptist church both morning and evening.

PERSONAL.

W. E. Hayden has gone to Hunter's station, Columbia county, to remain.

NOTES.

A fine lot of Bohman's mandolins just received at Tom Parrott's

R. O. Woodward, of this city, is in Birmingham, Ala., on his Eastern tour.

The frame of S. F. Dunning's building on Sixth and U is up, and work has been commenced on the brick veneering.

THE LAST WEEKLY BULLETIN.

The Final Review of the Prevailing Conditions of Crops and Weather This Season—To Be Published Monthly.

The following crop-weather bulletin, which is the last that will be issued this season, is compiled from reports received by the Oregon State Weather Bureau, co-operating with the United States Signal Service, for the week ending Saturday, September 28:

The temperature has been slightly above the normal. During the rainfall and cloudy weather on the first two days of the month, the temperature was very equable. Since then the average daily range has occurred. On Friday it rose to 80 deg. or more in most sections of the state, except along the coast and in the higher mountain ranges.

The rainfall has been about normal. The rain of last Saturday continued, giving by Tuesday showers in most every part of the state. Since Tuesday, except along the Northwest coast, no rain has fallen in the state. At Astoria over six inches of rain fell; in the Willamette valley from one to two inches fell; in Southern Oregon not quite one inch, and in Eastern Oregon from .10 to one-half inch fell.

The sunshine has been about normal, in the afternoon being quite warm. The atmosphere is clearing of smoke and the forest fires have nearly all been extinguished.

The weather conditions have been favorable to fall plowing, seeding, and to the growth of grasses in Western Oregon, while in Eastern Oregon not sufficient rain has as yet fallen, except in a few of the more favored localities to be of much practical benefit. At Astoria there was a heavy wind and rain storm on the first two days of the week. Throughout the Northern part of the Willamette valley, especially, the past week has been all that possibly could be desired, warm showers and sunny days since Tuesday. Grass has made good growth, rain enough has fallen to insure late pasture, and clover fields and late garden crops have been favored by the weather. The frost of September injured buckwheat, corn and sorghum crops. The wheat is all in the warehouses, but little has been sold, it is generally being held for an improved market. There appears to be no movement in hops. Potatoes have a good market with a tendency to increase in price. The shortness in the pasture has a very observable effect on the price of butter. The peach season is drawing to a close, good varieties of pears are becoming scarce in the market. Grapes continue to be very plentiful. As fine grapes as has been shown in the Portland market were received at the central office from Grant, Sherman county, showing the adaptability of the climate and soil of that region to the culture of grapes.

This bulletin closes the series for 1889. They will be resumed on the opening of the next growing season. The monthly bulletin and report will continue to be issued. These will contain a resume of the weather, climate and what effect it had on crops or agricultural operation. Next season it is hoped to have a more extensive system of reports for these weekly bulletins. The thanks of this bureau has been extended to the press and to the correspondents who have assisted in making these weekly crop-weather bulletins a success, and their co-opera ion is further requested to enable the monthly reports to be of that interest and value which is desired. The monthly reports are for gratuitous distribution, and any one desiring them should make application to their local observer or to the central office in this city.

MORE STREET RAILWAYS.

A Correspondent Who Thinks We Cannot Have Too Many.

The Duty of the City Council in Regard to Granting Franchises, and Guarding the Rights of Citizens.

Now that it begins to look as if Portland was to have a system of street railroads that would be a credit to her and in keeping with her station as a city, the gentle mossback, the ever-ready obstructionist, begins to realize that the world moves, and this not being in accordance with his narrow views, he hastens to file his remonstrance. When a street railway, the motive power of which was to be horses, was slowly put down, it did not particularly attract his attention, but when crowds of men began to quickly lay cable and electric lines on the different streets, he rises from his slothful couch and seeks to check the march of improvement. Some of these gentry insist that there should not be a street railway any oftener than every fourth street. Of course, if there be a single or a double track on a street, it tends to depreciate that street as a race course, but it is hardly likely that every street in the city will be covered with a street railway, and if it should be, have we not most delightful suburban drives and driving parks.

Now, I want it understood that I do not own a dollar's worth of stock in any street railway in the city, nor do I expect to, but I would rather see every street in the city covered with a railroad track than to have our city without a single line. I may be wrong in my ideas, but I do not think that I am, and I am certain that I do not belong to that miserable class—the obstructionists. I like to see everything and everybody busy. I like to see buildings in construction and manufactories in operation, and I know that the construction and operation of long lines of street railway gives temporary and permanent employment to large numbers of men. Besides this it costs something to construct and maintain a large system of street railway and a large amount of money is put into circulation thereby.

That street railways build up a city no one can deny. Even the crusty mossback will not dispute this, for how did he make his money except by holding on to that piece of real estate, which increased in value but little until that street railway began operations upon his street? He did lots of talking and fault finding and tried his best to defeat the project, but his neighbors had some sense and riches was forced upon him as it was upon the rest of his calling.

The street railway business can be and I freely admit has been grossly abused. Valuable franchises have been given away without money and without price. Now this has possibly been all for the best and I find no objections to it; for Portland has not always been a great city and she could not afford to be arbitrary in the matter and insist upon the people obtaining franchises, paying large sums for the same. The fact is that there are many small towns that would pay a company a reasonable subsidy to operate a street railway in their town. The worst and in fact the only evil that has so far resulted from our street railways is the bad condition of the streets occupied by some of them. This is the fault of the city for it should have been, if it was not, inserted in the different franchises to the effect that any company getting the right to construct a line on any street should keep said street between the rails and one yard on each side of them in perfect repair. The rails should also be placed a little below the grade of the street and not above it as many of them now are.

The cable road is undoubtedly the neatest road, and next to it comes the line which uses horses as a propelling power. Any line of the last description that has any grade to it worth mentioning should be compelled to use at least two horses to every car. Of course an electric line at this day has a great many poles and wires connected with it over which the obstructionist has a cut fit as it were. I believe that these numerous poles could be tastefully and artistically painted so as to make them rather ornamental than otherwise. The overhead wire makes it unhandy for kite flying, it is true, but I think that the boys will find plenty of room elsewhere for this innocent amusement. Over in Seattle they have an electric line in operation, poles overhead wires and all, and they have nothing to say but words of praise in regard to it. They like it better than their cable lines. But overhead wires and poles are to be dispensed with in the near future for our enterprising citizen, Captain Kern, insists that he has discovered a system whereby the wire is laid in an underground trench and the electric current satisfactorily transmitted to the moving car. I beg to inform the street railway men, if they are not already aware of the fact, that there has been a new system of propulsion discovered called the pneumatic system. I could not explain this very well on paper without taking up too much of your valuable space, but it is said to be the best and most satisfactory system in existence. It may pay our street railway men to examine into this, which they can do by writing to the Scientific American or New York Graphic.

Now as to the idea of the railway companies paying the city for their franchises. My idea is, and I think no company seeking a franchise will object to it, that after a line has been in operation say from three to five years, it should pay a certain percentage of its gross earnings to the city. I do not believe in making them pay as soon as they get their line in operation for that would seem to be too arbitrary. Give them a show. We are not living in New York city or Chicago and we cannot afford to be too stiff with capital seeking investment in our city. I understand the different companies with which to build lines on Alder street and on Sixth street, and the certain individuals, principally opposition railway men, have been trying hard to induce the council to deny these lines a franchise. My idea is—and I trust the members of the council will not think of me as one meddling with their business—give them a franchise with certain reasonable conditions. I have heard that something will be done regarding this at the next meeting of the council and I trust that the members of that honorable body will do their duty as live, sensible representatives of a live city, and not listen to a few old croakers and mossheads. Let us have all the street railroads possible, we cannot get too many.

PONDEROUS EVIDENCE.

A Courtroom Turned Into a Workshop to Facilitate the Trial of a Patent Right Suit.

The patent right suit of Norton & Norton vs. Jonson & Fox, in the United States circuit court, is putting both parties to considerable expense and trouble, though the end to be gained no doubt warrants it to the party winning the suit.

Edwin and Oliver W. Norton, of Chicago, manufacturers of a canning machine known as the Gordon patent, to which they claim sole patent right, bring suit against the defendants, who run the Astoria Iron Works, for alleged infringement.

For the purpose of establishing the points of difference and similarity in the two machines both parties will exhibit them in court. As this is considered the best evidence, both parties have gone to considerable expense in shipping the ponderous machinery to this city. The Norton machine arrived from Chicago yesterday morning and a portion of it was set up in the court room. The remainder, being too heavy, was left in the large hall on the ground floor.

The machinery of the Astoria firm has also been shipped, and this will be set up Monday morning. As a result of all this mechanical evidence, the court room will present the appearance of a full fledged workshop. The case is to be tried before Judge Sawyer.

THE COURTS' DAILY GRIST.

Judge Stearns Granted Three More Decrees of Divorce Yesterday.

Indictment Quashed—More Matrimonial Candidates—Brought Before Judge Tanner—Charged With Gambling—Docket.

Judge Stearns granted three separations yesterday—Fidelia Seelig from Karl Seelig, Christine W. E. Ross from Joseph F. Ross, on the ground of cruelty, and P. A. McEvoy from Rosie McEvoy, for desertion.

BEFORE JUDGE TANNER.

In the police court yesterday Judge Tanner disposed of the following cases:

John Murphy, Arthur Fry, Mike McGrath, Thomas Budd and James Gilliland, drunk, fined $5 each; Edward James, begging, $60.

Henry Myers, proprietor of the saloon on the south-east corner of Second and Washington streets, was arraigned on the charge of keeping a disorderly house. The saloon was kept open until a late hour yesterday morning, and the noise and disturbance was of such a character as to disturb the peace of mind of passing pedestrians. Mr. Myers put up $100 bail, and will have an examination to-morrow afternoon.

Peter Johnson, charged with assault and battery on E. A. McKay, was given a jury trial. As the jury remained out some time the decision will be announced to-morrow afternoon.

The two cases against Frank Lambert, threatening to kill his wife, Cora Lambert, and assault ng her with a dangerous weapon, were also continued until Monday afternoon. According to the woman's story, she has not been living with her husband for over a year. She left him in California, going to Seattle, and from there came to Portland. Lambert, hearing of her whereabouts, came to Portland, in hopes of inducing her to again live with him, but his efforts were in vain. She refuses to return to him, and claims that he is causing her much unnecessary trouble and annoyance. The case will be passed upon to-morrow afternoon.

George W. Anderson, the alleged forger, who was arrested in Seattle and brought to Portland, will be given an examination Monday afternoon, if he wants it.

ALLEGED GAMBLERS IN TROUBLE.

Warrants were sworn out in Justice Tuttle's court yesterday against George and Charles Watson and Arthur Dixon by Thomas Watson. The charge preferred against the trio is gambling.

LICENSED TO WED.

Marriage licenses were granted yesterday for Oscar C. Truax, aged 25, and Sarah E. Warwick, aged 17; J. D. Hooper, 23, and Altie G. Howard, 19; Ned Paulson, 27, and Mary Rice, 23.

HEFFRON GOES FREE.

The indictment against James Heffron for robbing F. J. Peck of $15 50 was quashed in the criminal court yesterday, owing to the disappearance of Peck.

SUIT AGAINST WODECKI.

Fiegenbaum & Co., of San Francisco, have begun an attachment suit in the circuit court against M. Wodecki to recover $991 78 for goods sold.

JUDAISM STILL LIVES.

A Brief Synopsis of an Able Sermon By the Rev Dr. Bloch.

The Rev Dr. Bloch preached in the new synagogue on Friday evening last, which was the beginning of the Yom Kippur or Day of Atonement.

He took his text from the words of the prophet Elijah: "Behold thy son, he liveth." The man of God has accepted the hospitality of the poor widow, and her son had died, but on hearing the sad intelligence the prophet has made supplication to the eternal, and the spirit of life again permeated the body of this lad, and the prophet brought him to the widow, saying: "Behold thy son, he liveth."

Men call this a miracle, and strive to shatter the throne of God itself in attacking Biblical truth, forgetting that to the source of all power all things are possible. Mothers yearn with strange affection for their flesh and blood; a proud ship ploughs the sea, a model of scientific architecture, an evidence of man's overmastering genius. A moment and every heart is flushed and stilled. A child is sweptby a huge wave from its mother's breast into the sea. With a wild shriek she would follow, but kind hands restrain her, and a sailor, remembering his golden-haired darlings in the far away home, springs into the wild waters, struggles with the waves, and at length lays the child at its mother's feet: "Behold thy child, it liveth."

Judaism is a mother that yearns for her children. That which the inspired prophet Isaiah said centuries ago may be applied to Israel to-day: "Children have I nourished and brought up, but they have rebelled against me. They know me not." When the walls of the Ghetto surrounded the Jew, none so faithful to his religion as he; the outside pressure once removed, the walls of prejudice shaken, he forgets mother Judaism, that preserved him through the ages, and though she crieth out to him for support and recognition, he knows her not.

Yet is there consolation; it is holy day and time bring us together, wherever we may say to the yearning mother, Judaism; "Behold, thy children still live!" Atonement—what does it mean? It is a transition from the material to the ideal; from earth to heaven from the real to the spiritual, and that by which purification comes to the children of God. It is the transition from mortality to immortality. Continually we are plied with questions concerning immortality, and taunted by our ignorance. They tell us we know of none who have come back from the world beyond. But who would rob the soul of the promise of after life? Death has no terror equal to the thought that once gone, the souls of those who loved with undying faith on earth shall meet no more. The immortality of the soul is the sweetest tribute that religion lays upon man's life.

WOMAN'S VOTING CAREER.

Mrs. Duniway Describes the Suffrage Sentiment in Washington.

The Question Is Not Settled, for Those Advocating Equal Rights for All Sexes Regard it as a Natural Right.

As the many readers of THE OREGONIAN who have been watching the progress of political events in Washington territory during the past six months with ill-concealed anxiety are now pressing me upon all sides with correspondence in reference to the supposed exhilination of women's career as voters, I hurriedly seize my pencil to jot down what I know about the matter at this writing, dependent the while for information upon personal observation and private advices, because of the studied reticence of the Associated Press.

In only one precinct thus far heard from does the vote of men for woman suffrage equal the vote of men for prohibition. In many localities the women turned out to vote in large numbers, and would have quite generally offered their votes everywhere but for the unanticipated rudeness of judges of election, who in some instances intimidated those sovereign citizens by acts as unlawful as that arbitrary and outrageous original conspiracy which is seeking to exercise an unwarrantable jurisdiction over the women voters of this incoming state.

At Walla Walla, the women write me, there was particularly offensive rudeness in one ward. Among the men who tied the women's hands and their imagined they had licked them, were some who even rushed into print in self-glorification over their act of usurpation and lawlessness.

Peter Johnson, charged with assault and battery on E. A. McKay, was given a jury trial. As the jury remained out some time the decision will be announced to-morrow afternoon.

The two cases against Frank Lambert, threatening to kill his wife, Cora Lambert, and assaulting her with a dangerous weapon, were also continued until Monday afternoon. JUDAISM STILL LIVES.

A Brief Synopsis

The Oregonian.

PORTLAND SUNDAY, OCT. 6.

The investment in Southern California town lots two years ago first became the fashion and then a craze. It resulted in a maximum of disappointment and a minimum of profits.

The people of the four new states are beginning to catch their breath, after their long political chase. They are all fixed, now, except in the matter of United States senators, and numerous candidates are not wanting who fondly hope that this is as good as settled.

The United States steamer Pensacola has been assigned by Secretary Tracy to the uses of the eclipse expedition, that is to sail for the African coast about the middle of this month. The expedition will consist of twenty or twenty-five men, in charge of Professor Todd.

Transactions in real estate in Salem for the five weeks ending October 2 represented a total of $295,241. During a corresponding period of last year they were only $97,316, a difference which justifies its citizens in congratulating themselves upon the lively turn that affairs have taken in the capital.

In Baltimore the other day a young woman who went out for a walk with her "other young man" was promptly shot for her temerity by the one who claimed a patent right to accompany her in her rambles. Will young women never learn that the "cannot-live-without-you" young man is dangerous upon occasion?

Street car companies are anxiously considering the traction question, in connection with their cars. Up in Albany the matter seems to have been settled without difficulty, the car in that city only running, it is said, "when the spirit moves it." The unreasonable public prefer a more material agency, complaining that "spirit traction" of this sort is too slow.

The country surrounding Wardner and the whole of the Coeur d'Alene district is sustaining its prestige by the constant increase of its mineral products. It has been demonstrated that honest representations will always accuse the necessary capital to open up new enterprises. Northern Idaho has a bright future if her people will only hold out the proper inducement to men of capital.

J. Q. A. Brackett, nominated on the republican ticket for governor of Massachusetts, is a graduate of Harvard, and was admitted to the bar in Boston in 1868. He has had a large political training, having served in the common council of Boston, in the state legislature, and as lieutenant governor of Massachusetts. During the last twenty years he has been a prominent exponent of republican doctrine from every platform of his state.

It is reported that the railroad accident in Chicago, by which a number of lives were lost, was caused by an engineer partially under the influence of liquor. There is some reason to believe that other accidents have occurred from a similar cause. No railroad company can enforce prohibition among employes, but a man who drinks whisky should not be allowed to stand at the engine's throttle, where the safety of a hundred lives often depends upon a cool head and steady nerves.

The Statesman says that nearly every man coming to the penitentiary or asylum lately is a morphine fiend. It is hard for the industry and sobriety of the commonwealth to have to support such miserable victims of a depraved appetite, but the demands of humanity are inexorable, and there is nothing to do in the premises but to pay the bills and be thankful that there is a chance to restrain such men of their liberty, and rid the community of their baleful presence.

The Marion county almshouse is supplied with water from a 2000-gallon tank which is replenished by a fourteen foot windmill. The building is furnished with hot and cold water appliances and in this respect is envied by many farmer's wives in the county, who tug at heavy windlasses, and wrestle with leaky tea-kettles and superannuated wash-boilers, as elements in their household economy—so called—that are wearing on body, nerves and temper.

Every sawmill in the Willamette valley, and for what we know in all Oregon is being pushed to its fullest capacity in the vain endeavor to supply the heavy demand for lumber. This means that the "forest primeval" is being converted into dwellings, barns and fences in Oregon at a rate unprecedented in the history of the state. From the manner in which orders crowd the mills it looks as if everybody that did not want one house wanted two, with a barn and out-buildings thrown in.

Robert Ray Hamilton has begun proceedings for divorce from his wife, alleging fraud in the marriage contract. Poor fellow. He was indeed sadly imposed upon, though a man of average common sense, and ordinarily decent instincts would scarcely have expected the marriage ceremony to have transformed a brawling, bawd into a gentle, virtuous wife. He was "deceived," however, and will doubtless get a divorce upon the simple statement of the manner in which he was so sadly taken in.

A ghastly skeleton was discovered in a brush heap in Pacific county, Washington, a few days ago by some railroad engineers. A bullet hole through the skull and a gold tooth on a pivot were mute but conclusive evidences of the identity of a sheriff who had disappeared nearly a score of years ago, and of the manner of his death. It furnishes about the only case on record wherein the sudden disappearance of a sheriff with his pockets full of taxes was finally traceable to others over which he had no control.

After many conflicting rumors it is now positively asserted that Papa Huntington has consented to the marriage of his daughter to Prince Hatzfeldt. Upon being interviewed upon this matter of vast international importance the paternal guardian of the young woman intimated that there was "nothing to hinder," or words to that effect, so it may be regarded as settled that the title of the prince is an offset to his somewhat shabby career and his manifold debts. Mrs. Grundy and her anxious sons and curious spouse, not to speak of her envious daughters will, it is hoped, now consider the question settled.

Some governing bodies differ from the municipal authorities of Portland in the manner of handling corporate privileges. Victoria is a colony of Australia with an area of 87,000 square miles and a population of 1,000,000. In order to develop the resources of the country it became necessary to build railroads and instead of giving away valuable rights such as this Victoria built the roads herself. Those in authority came to the sensible conclusion that if there was money in the project the state should reap the benefit. The result is that the government last year had an income of $41,000,000, and of this sum $16,500,000 was in the shape of profits on the state railroads. Seven years ago the income from the railroads was only $9,000,000; in 1886-7 it was $12,265,000 and for the year just closed it has gone up to nearly double the income of seven years ago, and, as no one can build roads but the state and the state is an enterprising builder and a good manager, the profits on the railroads will in time pay all the expenses of the government. In addition, Victoria owns not only the post-office, but all the express business and all the telegraph business and the profit on these for this wise, thrifty little state last year was $2,140,000. The result of this paternal form of governmental administration is that the surplus last year above all expenditures amounted to $1,499,000. The most interesting feature of the whole matter is in the fact that the system of protective tariff prevails in Victoria.

Spanish emigration has attained already such proportions as to alarm the Madrid government. Spain, with over 200,000 square miles and but 17,000,000 of people, has become an over-peopled country through the disappearance of many manual industries practiced during the 16th century, and the shrinkage of the cultivable area, through the wholesale destruction of the forests which formerly covered her mountains and assured a steady supply of water. In Spain the pay of the laborer even in fertile Andalusia is 29 cents a day. Barren Galicia has to support 360 persons to the square mile and labor there is reduced to a condition of wretched penury. The stream of Spanish emigration, which once went to Algeria, Cuba and Porto Rico, now goes to Uruguay and Argentine Republic, South America, which received 23,000 Spanish settlers the first five months of this year. The Argentine government pays their expense in full or in part, gives farms in fee simple with agricultural implements, and further assistance the first year. There are now nearly a million of Italians in the Argentine confederation, and the Argentine government now seeks to increase Spanish emigration in order to save their own Spanish element from eclipse and to lessen the influence of the Italians.

The infernal noise and abominable odors with which the Chinese escorted his satanic majesty to the river a few days ago, and set him adrift were sufficient to accomplish the object of frightening and overpowering him, if any earthly combination could do so. The high priests of the occasion in their gorgeous robes of flaming red, with queer patches on the back covered with cabalistic characters; the quaint pantomime of the stolid, solemn-looking dignitaries and the resounding din of their brass instruments are impressive in their way. It may be that they are only more foolish and ineffectual than some of the ordinances and symbols of the Christian religion because we have no means of interpreting them and no knowledge of what they profess to teach. Religious ceremonies are sacred to the extent to which we are taught to revere them, and there is certainly abundant evidence to prove that the disciples of Confucius are in earnest in their simple reverence for the mystifications of their pretentious creed.

Wages have not only increased within the last three decades but the purchasing power of wages has also advanced. In 1880 the industrially employed numbered 2,732,595 and received $947,953,795 in wages, or an average of $346.90 a year, while in 1860 there were 1,311,246, who received $378,878,963, or $288.18 a year. Since 1860 cotton goods have declined from 10 to 50 per cent., woolen goods from 20 to 50 per cent., iron and steel products, boots and shoes, paper and chemicals from 25 to 50 per cent., flour 17 per cent., sugar 33 per cent., china 50 per cent., glass 15 to 50 per cent., and rubber shoes 46 per cent. With the earnings of the laborer higher and the cost of his necessaries lower than ever before there is little need to look farther to find out why building associations multiply rapidly and why the industrious, saving toiler usually owns his own home under a protective tariff.

With upward of 450,000 pensioners now on the rolls, and more than 400,000 more who possibly have claims on a substantial basis, it will be seen without further words what an immense business has grown from a small beginning in the pension bureau; what a tremendous influence persons prominent in pension claims and pension service may wield; what discretion of mind and control of tongue should characterize the head of the bureau; why the president hesitates before the appointment of a commissioner, seeking a man of high reputation and undoubted capability for the place, and why so many forces are contending for the control of the office. The position is not going begging. It is simply waiting in the hands of an anxious executive for the right man to apply.

The first day of October, A. D., 1889, proved to be a very cool one for the democrats in Washington. That absurd attempt to vote down the constitution which they helped to make, re-acted on the party, and the result, after so much bombastic boasting, of one state senator and seven representatives, shows democracy in that state to be but the faded reminiscence of aggregated political blunders.

A FAMILY AFFLICTION.

The Blaines, if we may judge by a picture of father, mother, son and daughter which appeared in the Boston Herald a few days ago are not a very attractive or aristocratic looking set of people. The elder Blaine has a familiar look that makes this picture tolerable, but the young man appears as a cross between a dude and a politician, while the two women have a blowsy look that is at once pitiful and painful. The marriage of Emmons Blaine, that gave an excuse for presenting this family group to the public as what there is left of the Blaine family at home is, to that extent a calamity.

A wedding is the one thing through which people of refinement do not care to be advertised, and what with the fuss, illustrated by cheap wood cuts over the marriage of Emmons Blaine, and the free and easy discussion of the mistake that James G., junior, made in marrying an alleged actress who has the rheumatism and an ungoverned temper, the family of the secretary of state has been sorely afflicted in this direction. It is to be hoped that the remaining son and daughter will remain single until such time as the family is in circumstances to conduct its personal business privately.

We are at a loss whether to designate this matrimonial spread as a family affliction, or a public infliction since it partakes most decidedly of the nature of both.

AN IMPROVED CLERGY.

The clergy of the Episcopal church of today are vastly superior to what they were forty years ago. They have as much culture, learning and polish of manners as they had years ago, but they have gained immensely in earnestness, and what we might call Christian executive force. They are obliged to apply the talents of men of the world and of affairs to the organization and prosecution of a very large field of practical Christian work in our large cities and the good effect of this discipline and experience is seen in the growing simplicity of their manners and speech. They are become a class of busy pastors instead of mere brooding, sighing, sentimental, and not seldom fantastic priests. They are busy to-day with the substance rather than the show of religion, and like all really busy men, they waste little time in pompous talk, but push forward to performance.

The inevitable result is that they have gained wonderfully, not only in tact, efficiency and knowledge of men, but have become more tolerant of opinions through their increased experience and chance for observation. In other words the clergy have gained wonderfully since they were given a great deal to do in this world instead of being left to brood or meander over the next. The difference is just the difference between an indolent, inert clergy, composed of clerical dreamers and ritualistic dudes, and a clergy composed of earnest energetic, practical men of industry, executive and administrative ability.

CIVIL RIGHTS FOR CHINESE.

Wong Chin Foo, an educated Chinaman, decreates the intention of the Universal Peace Commission of Philadelphia, to use its efforts to have the anti-Chinese law repealed and to allow free admission into the United States of all classes of Chinese. He does not desire further immigration of Chinese laundry men, but says that what the Chinese residents do really need now is the civil rights that are enjoyed by every race of men in the United States but the Chinese. We quote:

> We feel the pang of disgrace before the eyes of our brother races when we are put into bonded warehouses and pens like common cattle while going from one port to another. We are pained beyond expression when we consider the fact that once having left the shores of the United States, whether for pleasure or business, we are forbidden to return to our friends and homes here.

A very large per centage of us are here more for political reasons than for the mere matter of money getting. We hated our own government at home because of its many abuses and its tyrannous rule, and sought a clime and government more in unison with our advanced ideas of liberty, where we can let our ideas grow and have a chance to see them.

Let the Americanized Chinamen become citizens of the United States. Give the man equal chance. Free them from the social slavery that now keeps them apart in the midst of so liberal a people, and let them feel like free men everywhere.

On the 27th ult. sixty Chinese, with $120,000 in gold, started by the Canadian Pacific for Hong Kong, where neither the Chinamen nor the $120,000 will ever see America again, the former because Uncle Sam's law won't let them, and the latter because their owners love them too dearly to part with them.

"GREAT GENERALS."

General Horace Porter in his speech at West Point, said:

> Nearly every great war has given birth to one great general; no other war than our own has produced three such eminent commanders.

This is not quite true. Allowing for the modern advantages of railroads, and steam transportation, and the telegraph, applied to the conduct of war, and allowing for the vast improvement in the range, precision and destructiveness of artillery and small arms, there have been wars which have produced at least three commanders as eminent as Grant, Sherman and Sheridan.

The "Thirty Years War" produced Gustavus Adolphus, and his great lieutenants, Banner, Torstenson and Bernard of Weimar.

The wars of Louis the Fourteenth included Turenne, Conde, Villars, Luxemburg, Vendome, Berwick, and Boufflers, and it would not be just to say that out of all Napoleon's marshals he had not two that were as able as Sherman and Sheridan. Massena's retreat from Torres Vedras; his conduct at Rivoli, Zurich and Aspern was as masterly as anything that Sherman ever did, and either Lannes or Davoust were as able and energetic in action as Sheridan, and displayed decided capacity for independent command, Davoust at Auerstadt and Lannes at Saragossa. Soult at Austerlitz and in Spain against Wellington displayed military talents of a very high order.

WOODWORKING MACHINERY.

The Interest Taken by the Vast Crowds in the Display of This Firm—The Large Russell High Speed Automatic Engine.

Last night was the big night of the fair The great building was filled to repletion. All was jam, push, rush and hurry and it can truly be said that the holding capacity of the structure was for once tested to its utmost capacity While the music is the great central feature of the exposition there is more interest taken in the individual displays made by the leading firms of the city than ever before, and in no part of the big building is this more noticeable than in the machinery hall with its constant din of moving and heavy machinery There is an attraction in a running piece of machinery that at once appeals to the young and old alike, and the railings surrounding the different exhibits in this portion of the building are constanty crowded by an anxious and interested throng of people

The great display of Russell & Co is the leading exhibit of machinery hall This large firm makes the only display of wood working machinery at the Exposition This is the only house in the Northwest to-day that carries a full line of wood-working machinery of all kinds and it is the only house that is prepared at a moment's notice to furnish and set up complete sawmill and planing mill plants. It is the boast of this firm that a purchaser can find at any time in their complete stock anything in the line of wood working machinery that he desires

In this connection it may be well to call attention specially to the re saw machines carried by this firm as well as their rapid national fast feed flooring machine, the fastest planer in the world, and their Simond's shingle machine possessing improvements possessed by no other similar machine in the market. Russell & Co's display should be seen and their large sale and store rooms at the corner of Front and Morrison should be visited by all strangers now in the city

A Thriving Town

The town of Monmouth in which the Normal School is located, is situated in the very richest and most beautiful part of the Willamette valley It is high, dry, and free from all trace of malaria. Saloons and all dens of vice are excluded from within the corporate limits by a section of the town charter. Business is thriving, new buildings are being erected, new enterprises undertaken, and still there is room for more stores and shops. A good hotel is an urgent need; also a livery stable, tin shop, Etc.

Monmouth is situated on the narrow-gauge railroad, two miles from the Willamette river and the west side division of the O. & C. railroad, seventy miles south of Portland and fourteen miles southwest of Salem. Visit the town and school. It is one of the best places for a paying investment in the State.

PORTLAND, SUNDAY, OCT 6

MRS. BURNETT'S SALUTATORY

One of the most pleasing and permanent features of THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN hereafter will be a class of contributions designed especially for our young readers, although as is the case with nearly all so called children's stories of the present day they will be equally interesting to young and old Of this class of literature there is no more successful exponent than Mrs Frances Hodgson Burnett, the author of "Little Lord Fauntleroy" now a household word both in England and America. Mrs Burnett is the one author in the world possessing, in the highest degree qualities necessary to edit successfully a department for youth and family reading for the newspaper press, and for that purpose her services are now engaged as editor in-chief of this department. She will not only write editorials and approve all matter written for the department, but will also contribute some of her admirable stories to it. Our readers will find these contributions always bright and fascinating They begin with to-day's issue, in which will be found the opening chapters of a new serial by Bret Harte, dealing with child life in the early days of the great West a short story by Edward Everett Hale, advice about reading by Andrew Lang a popular astronomical article by Sir Robert Ball, entitled The Oceans and Clouds of the Planets,' and a story by Professor John Trowbridge entitled "Sailing by a Jack knife," which clearly and logically presents to the young reader many facts known to the science of electricity Mrs Burnett's salutatory to her young people is as follows

My Dear Children Some time ago I was made very glad and proud by receiving a letter from the Philadelphia Times, telling me that your votes had decided that you liked 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' better than any of the many stories you had read There are so many beautiful stories written for you now that to have written the one which pleases so many children more than all the rest is to have reason to be happy and proud. There was once a man who said 'Let me make the songs of the people and who will may make their laws.' Sometimes I think, 'Let me make stories for the children and who will may write for the older ones' So, you see when I was asked to edit this department for you I could not say 'No' Perhaps it will interest you to know that but for a little boy I knew and loved I should never have thought of writing Fauntleroy" This little boy and his brother with whom I have been the most intimate friend ever since they were born, have taught me a great deal I think I may say they have educated me and that if I write stories children love it is because have so much loved two children and have told them so many When I wrote "Lord Fauntleroy" these two little boys heard it all read aloud as it was written and if they had cruelised any part of it I am sure I should have felt it my duty to cut that part out, but for an only they were kind enough to approve of it all and so I allowed it to be published. During my acquaintance with these boys the one thing I have specially noticed and that is that no subject is uninteresting to them if it is talked or written about well and clearly They like to hear of art, science, mechanism, politics, literature, everything, so long as it is thoroughly explained by some one who understands the subject himself This is the case I am sure, with all other children who think and read, and as now the people who are the cleverest are willing to help the children by writing for them of the things they know best themselves there seems scarcely any limit to what children may learn and enjoy Nothing that is information is useless Each time you learn a new thing you are the gainer if it is only through having exercised your intelligence and your power of observation Every bit of added knowledge makes your minds broader, and the broader your minds the kinder and more generous your spirits will be The boy or girl who knows and is interested only in one thing will be less likely to have sympathy for those who only know something else And I am sure the way to make the big world better and happier and wiser is that each boy and girl shall feel interest in and sympathy for the rest—because it is the boys and girls who are learning and enjoying their youth to-day who will be the men and women who will make all the changes for the better or for the worse that the world will know during their generation

If there is a great new law to be created which will make America a stronger and more perfect republic, it is some boy who is playing baseball or tennis or riding a bicycle to-day who will be the man who leads the way to the making of it I confess I like to think of that boy He probably has his pockets full of all sorts of things, I know the kind of things He doubtless can make a good deal of noise if it is seriously required of him It is not unlikely that he prefers not to wash his hands too frequently It is just possible that he has a magnificent, muscular appetite, indeed, I sincerely hope he has. He may not be considered any thing particular in the way of a boy, and yet in a certain number of years from now—and years pass quickly—he will stand in the house or senate at Washington and he will say honest, eloquent, logical, glowing words that will right some great wrong or give aid at some great crisis and long after his life is ended men and women will say that the world was better for his having been born. It seems to me that it is a splendid thing for all the boys to think of, for who knows which boy it may be of all the thousands who are only honest, manly little fellows to-day for of course it will be a manly fellow? And if a number of boys in wishing they might each have this great thing to do tried a little to make themselves ready and worthy to do it, then there would be so many more men strong and alert-minded and generous, and ready to follow the leader like splendid soldiers when the great time came, or perhaps to lead to others things quite as great, though in other paths

And I speak not only of the boys but of the girls who are their sisters and friends and who have quite as much to do in the world as they Those who first and best can prepare these boys and girls for doing great and sweet generous and useful things are those who make their homes Those who come next in power are those who make their literature—the books they read the stories or poems or essays that suggest new thoughts to them I am sure no boy ever read the history of a fine deed without a glow at his heart and a wish that he might be allowed to do something like it And the boy or girl who constantly reads what brings beautiful thoughts to him or her cannot long have a narrow and ugly mind the beautiful thoughts will shine in it like the sun and make bright all the dark places In these days among the most beautiful magazines are those for children In this department for young people we shall try to add to their good fortune in literature to help each to learn what he or she thinks will be most useful in the future, and what will give the most intelligent pleasure in the present. If one wishes to read a story we shall try to give him one of the best and most inspiring that can be written if others wish to hear of pictures, of history of mechanics science, art or politics, we hope to induce the persons who know most of such subjects to write about them in such a way as can be most clearly understood In this manner we hope to reach so many of those who are young that scarcely any boy or girl can fail to have what he or she desires and needs If in doing this the child whose fortune it is to go the great things is even indirectly helped to do them more perfectly, and if the child whose fortune it is to do the small one is helped to feel that the smallest thing is worth doing well and with a sweet and brave spirit, then the Young People's Department will have been a success This success, above all others I who love children wish for it

FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT

AN INSIDE VIEW

In the Century for October is printed a very interesting letter, never before published, written by the late Judge John A Campbell who was a justice of the U S supreme court from 1853 until his resignation in May, 1861 Judge Campbell was not a friend of the secession movement and on his return to Alabama he was treated with coldness and contempt by the secession population because he distinctly warned the leaders of the rebellion the cotton was not king that privateering and slavery would prevent recognition by the powers of Europe that the war would be long and bitter and that the Northern people were a proud and powerful people that would not endure the supposed insults they had suffered," because they were not merely a nation of peddlers and shopkeepers whose pocket is their most sensitive nerve "

Judge Campbell had no connection with the Confederate government until the last of October, 1862 when he accepted the position of assistant secretary of war after declining a position in the cabinet of Jeff Davis and a diplomatic appointment abroad His annual salary was $500 and became at last worth just $100 He entered office under the conviction that he might become useful in the settlement of peace if he was connected with the government

In this letter which was written from his prison in Fort Pulaski, where he had been confined since his arrest on the 22d of May 1865 Judge Campbell states that in 1861 he became satisfied that the resources of the Confederacy for another campaign were exhausted The finances, recruiting of soldiers, commissariat, transportation, ordnance, ammunition and medical supplies had all failed By November 1864 the Confederacy had issued $400,000 000 of treasury notes which were selling at sixty to one for specie at the treasury The supply of specie February 15 1864 was but $750 000 Bonds and certificates were not salable, taxes difficult of collection and the estimates of the war department were $1 357 000 000 in Confederate bills with no restriction on issues In April, 1862 conscription embraced those between 18 and 35 in October 1862 those between 35 and 40 were added in February, 1864, those between 17 and 50 were added, all men who had placed substitutes in service were called for and exemptions were curtailed During the war there had been exemptions and details for civil and industrial service Manufactories mechanical and agricultural employments, were sustained by details but in October 1864 a sweeping order of revocation was made but did not serve to recruit the army as the supply of men was exhausted Desertions became common from a class of men who had been excellent soldiers The workshops and manufacturing establishments became shorthanded, supplies were hoarded by the commissariat and the army for the most of the time was on half rations One thousand barrels of flour cost $650 000

Judge Campbell at this time was convinced that the programme of independence had failed with the loss of the Ohesapeake, the Mississippi Tennessee and Cumberland rivers and the coasts of the Carolinas, and in December, 1864 urged upon President Davis the necessity of making peace upon a concession of union and the surrender of slavery The views of Judge Campbell were shared by General Lee Governor Graham, of North Carolina Governor of South Carolina and by Hunter, of Virginia and were placed before President Davis who submitted them to the Confederate congress with a message urging the adoption of a measure authorizing the arming of slaves

Davis declined to treat for peace on any other terms save independence, on the ground that "the constitution did not allow him to treat for his own suicide, he could only receive resolutions and submit them to the sovereign states, as his personal honor would not permit him to treat for peace on the basis of the restoration of the Union and the surrender of slavery" Of Davis Judge Campbell writes

He was unfitted to manage a revolution or to conduct an administration Slow procrastinating obstructive, filled with petty scruples and doubts, and wanting in a clear strong, intrepid judgment a vigorous resolution and a generous and self-sacrificing nature, he became in the closing part of the war an incubus and a mischief

Judge Campbell in this letter, or rather official report, written to Davis and his congress on his return from the Hampton Roads peace conference in January 1864, pointed out that nothing but peace could save Richmond, General Lee could neither hold it nor move away from it His ruin was sealed and with that the fate of the Confederacy Judge Campbell remained in Richmond after its evacuation and testifies that the United States soldiers behaved with propriety when there was only wanting a licentious soldiery to make the cup of terror and confusion appalling Of Lee's surrender Judge Campbell felt no doubt as the stores at Richmond and Petersburg were lost in the evacuation there were no magazines in the country and his capture was compelled by the loss of his provisions a disaster made known as a probable consequence a month previously

This letter is a valuable contribution to the authentic history of the war as the writer's official position as assistant secretary of war gave him an inside view of the situation and his high character as a man gives weight to his testimony Campbell was not a pro slavery man, he had voluntarily liberated all his slaves several years before the war and in 1847 had publicly advocated as a duty the amelioration of the law of slavery and proposed the establishment of the legal relations of slaves in the family on a firm foundation and the removal of restraints on voluntary emancipation on education and to abolish all sales under legal or judicial orders or process "

So earnest was Judge Campbell in his declarations that the amelioration of slavery was a duty and a necessity that in 1860 61 he was denounced as an abolitionist by the Southern press

ARROGANT PUBLICISTICS

The Veteran Association of Ministers of the Genesee Methodist conference at their annual meeting at Lockport N Y on the 4th instant, adopted a resolution which describes the resignation of Corporal Tanner as forced from him by the influence of politicians, concludes as follows

We deprecate the subordinate on of the pension department to political wire pullers so that it cannot be administered by a man who, like Corporal Tanner has the true interest of the soldier at heart and we call upon the president of the United States to place the granting of pensions in the hands of those who will administer it in the interest of the country

The supporters of this resolution belong to a profession that cannot be excused for unworthy and unjust speech on the score of lack of intelligence, they are professional preachers of truth, they pretend to be conscientious seekers of truth and yet they prefer against President Harrison the grave charge that he has subordinated the pension department to political wire pullers and forced a pension commissioner who has the true interests of the soldiers at heart to resign and has thus refused 'to place the granting of pensions in the hands of those who will administer it in the interests of the country' These are very grave charges and if they were true they would convict President Harrison of a violation of his oath and an abuse and misuse of his executive powers and prerogative

There is not the slightest evidence before the country that Commissioner Tanner's resignation was demanded for any other reason than that he was so incompetent and lawless an official that his administration of his important bureau had become a public scandal Corporal Tanner in his private letter to Private Dalzell a soldier crank of Ohio says

'I have not the slightest doubt but that I would have been removed if I had not resigned—in fact I know it 'Mr Tanner said my removal was only a question of time and I would have been removed before the 1st of January at the latest' Tanner's reasons for resigning were that he could not carry out the policy of his administration in the matter of pensions and that he was not sustained by the President in his efforts to break up the 'combination of claim agents and attorneys' who were preying upon the pension office and defrauding the government Tanner's letter of resignation was a studied insult to the President and to the Secretary of the Interior and he was not sustained by either of them in the course he had taken in the matter of pensions

Tanner's letter to Dalzell

The next contest at the Golden Gate Athletic Club is between Charley Turner, the champion colored middle-weight of the Pacific coast, and Billy Hennessy, of Montana, who will have the advantage in hight, weight and reach.

Professor McCarthy is keeping himself in fair condition at the California club, preparatory to a meeting with Denny Kelloher in November next. The latter is at Los Angeles training Pete McCoy for his fight with Slumbering Cuff.

The conditions under which the Pelican Club offer a prize of £100 for a glove contest between Jem Smith and Peter Jackson are as follows:

First—The contest shall take place in the gymnasium of the new Pelican Club in November next on a day to be named by the undersigned, who guarantee the prize money.

Second—To be a fair, stand-up boxing match with medium-sized gloves, one man to win.

Third—A number of rounds, each of three minutes' duration, not to exceed ten, with one minute's interval between each.

Fourth—No wrestling, butting, hugging, roughing at the ropes or hitting with the open hand allowed.

Fifth—If either man fall through weakness or otherwise, his opponent to retire at once to his corner, and when the fallen man—who must get up unassisted—is on his legs the round is to be continued until the three minutes have expired. Either man down ten seconds to lose.

Sixth—Each man to have two attendants, but these are not allowed to be in the ring during the rounds.

The men to box in light boots or shoes without spikes, or in socks with knickerbockers.

Eighth—Prize money, £800 to winner £200 to the loser, the money to be handed over to the men before leaving the club.

Ninth—The contest to be awarded to the man having the best of the fighting. Light or fancy points not to count. The result of the contest to be decided by two judges with a referee, or by the referee only, and the men to have a voice in the selection. The prize money not to be awarded unless honestly and fairly won.

Tenth—The decision of the judges or referee to be final.

Eleventh—Should the contest not be satisfactorily decided the men to have the option of boxing again for the prize money, such contest to be limited to ten rounds, and to come off within eight days, the undersigned to name the time and place, or in the event of the men agreeing to a draw, each to receive £100.

Twelfth—In the event of a competition falling through from unforeseen circumstances, the men to be awarded £100 each for training expenses, and either man failing to put in an appearance to forfeit £100.

The introduction of Jack Dempsey as middle-weight champion of the world on Saturday night at the Olympic Club exhibition set the Marine's teeth on edge. There was probably not a more irate pugilist in the country on Saturday night after the show than La Blanche. In the first place, his professional choler was raised by Dempsey being placarded at the head of the best of listic stars, while he, the conqueror of the Nonpareil, got third place, and was referred to as the far-famed Marine, Dempsey being designated as the world's champion. Between being a world-famed Marine and a world's champion there is a vast difference in the eyes of a professional pugilist and La Blanche was in no pacific mood when he stripped for the exhibition on Saturday night. The subsequent proceedings were not calculated to mollify his feelings. He and Jimmy Carroll gave by far the best exhibition spar, as both have often appeared in public together and fully understood each other's tactics. His reception was cool, however, compared with that accorded Dempsey, a recently beaten man. The gallery cheered Jack to the echo, and the ladies added their gentle applause to the uproar when he was introduced as the middle-weight champion of the world. This was too much for the Marine, and he went out to the bar and for the first time in a couple of weeks took three consecutive horns, each of which would have knocked the underpinning from an ordinary man. Between each gulp the gladiator muttered to his sympathizing friend, Comedian Woods, "So he's the middle-weight champion, is he? Well, we'll see about that."

The Marine's mental uneasiness at Dempsey's being introduced as the middle-weight champion of the world is not altogether sentimental. There is business advantage in being known as the middle-weight champion of the world, for it looks well on a poster and helps to raise the owner's salary considerably when he gets a sparring engagement. The Marine has several offers to exhibit at Eastern theaters, and he wants the championship as a matter of business.

Although the Marine licked Dempsey fair and square as glove fights for purses go, he did not, however, win the championship. It was agreed by the pugilists and the California club that the fight was to be for the championship, and the men were to weigh in under 158 pounds, the limit according to club rules. Dempsey weighed 149¼ pounds and the Marine scaled 161 pounds, and the master of ceremonies therefore announced that the fight was not for the middle-weight championship. The battle was technically a contest between a heavy-weight and a middle-weight, and in no way, except by another fight at weight, can the Marine win the coveted title.

Dempsey last week deposited $1000 to bind another match with the Marine, but the money has not been covered. The California club will give another large purse if the men agree to fight again. Dempsey now authorizes the announcement in the Niche that to show his desire to meet La Blanche again he will put up $4000 against $3000, if the Marine agrees to fight him with skin gloves at 154 pounds, the regulation weight for the middle class. Dempsey, however, does not bar a fight at any weight, but he offers the extra inducement if the Marine will come inside the middle-weight limit, and contest under ring rules at which the Marine, who is a good wrestler, ought to be a very dangerous man.

Nothing but another fight can satisfactorily settle the question of the respective merits of La Blanche and Dempsey, which is still debated by clubmen and all interested in boxing. The impression that Dempsey was knocked out by a chance blow is not correct, for he was whipped by well considered tactics. Still to the average mind it appears that he was the victim of a "scratch," and the reception accorded the Marine and his rival on Saturday night shows better than anything else what the feeling is on the subject. If the Marine is confident of winning again and sets proper store by the title of champion, he should lose no time in covering Dempsey's deposit of $1000.—San Francisco Chronicle.

GENERAL SPORTING NOTES.

Dennis Butler, the swimmer, says he wants to swim Captain Paul Boyrton for a stake of from $1000 to $3000, any distance that Boynton will agree to.

George B. Gray, of the New York Athletic Club, says he will not accept the challenge of Charles Curtis, the professional champion shot-putter of Canada, to contest for $1000 a side. Gray prefers remaining in the amateur ranks.

The London Times, in their report of the Searle-O'Connor race, says: "All the best professional rowers now hail from the colonies or the United States, and neither the Thames nor Tyne possesses any rising men likely to restore the prestige of the old country in a sport in which she was once facile princeps."

George Steadman, the champion wrestler of the world, who recently defeated George Lowden in England and won the championship at Grasmere once more, is a remarkable athlete. He was born at Aspy, in Westmoreland, February 9, 1858, and has been a professional wrestler for twenty-seven years. He wrestles in all styles and has defeated the best French wrestlers Græco-Roman. In three successive years—1880 1881 and 1882—he carried away Sir John Astley's belt from Lillie Bridge. His measurements are: Chest, 47 inches; hight, 5 feet 10 and one-half inches; weight, 265 pounds.

BASEBALL.

Boston Loses to Pittsburg, and New York Wins the Pennant.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 5.—The inability to do anything with Galvin's delivery to-day spoiled Boston's slim hopes of the pennant. When the bulletin board announced that New York was winning at Cleveland their energy subsided, and they finished the game in a listless way. The home team were playing for fifth place, and got it. Their fielding was superb, but Bennet split a finger in the third inning and retired. Attendance, 4500. Score: Pittsburg 6, Boston 1. Base hits—Pittsburg 6, Boston 5. Errors—Pittsburg 0, Boston 5. Batteries—Pittsburg, Galvin and Carroll; Boston, Clarkson, Bennett and Kelley. Umpire—Powers.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 5.—The Hoosiers batted Young Keefe at will to-day, and consequently ended the season by taking their third straight game from the Senators. Rusie was wild, but received fine support. Neckbecker, of Burlington, caught the first two innings, and then retired on account of an injured finger. Score—Indianapolis 15, Washington 6. Base hits—Indianapolis 19, Washington 9. Errors—Indianapolis 1, Washington 6. Batteries—Indianapolis, Rusie, Sommers and Neckbecker; Washington, Keefe and Riddle. Umpire—Knight. Game called on account of darkness.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Chicago took third place in the league race by beating Philadelphia to-day in the last game of the season. It was a pitcher's contest, and was finely contested throughout. Attendance, 2500. Score: Chicago 3, Philadelphia 2. Batteries—Chicago 6, Philadelphia 6. Errors—Chicago 2, Philadelphia 3. Batteries—Chicago, Hutchinson and Darling; Philadelphia, Sanders and Clements. Umpire—McQuaid.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—Much to the gratification of Cleveland, New York won to-day's game and the pennant. Score—Cleveland 3, New York 5. Base hits—Cleveland 6, New York 7. Errors—Cleveland 4, New York 1. Batteries—Cleveland, Gruber and Sutcliffe; New York, Keefe and Ewing. Umpire—Lynch.

THE JUBILANT GIANTS.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 5.—The New York ball players are in an exceedingly happy frame of mind to-night, for to-day's game decided that the league pennant belongs to them. They left for New York at midnight in a special car, in which was a banner bearing the words, "The New Yorks, winners of the National league pennant."

ASSOCIATION GAMES.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 5.—Baltimore 11, Columbus 10. Called at the sixth inning on account of darkness.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 5.—Cincinnati 8, Louisville 1.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—St. Louis 7, Kansas City 2.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 5.—Brooklyn 2, Athletic 10.

TURF EVENTS.

Maiden 2-year-olds, three-fourths of a mile—Flossie won, Golden Horn second, King's Own third; time, 1:15¾.

Seven furlongs—Lafitte won, King Idle second Keynote third; time, 1:28¾.

SALE OF RACE HORSES.

MORRIS PARK, Oct. 5.—Walter Graiz's string of race horses was sold at auction to-day.

Elkwood, who won the 1888 suburban handicap, was bought by Mr. Kitton for $5000. He has two splints, and will probably never be sent out to race again. It is understood that Kittson will take him to the Erdenheim stock farm for breeding purposes.

Among the other horses sold was Pocatella, for $1800; Middleton, $1025; and Chestnut, colt, by Great Tom, $1000.

A number of youngsters from Milton Young's stock farm were also sold.

LATONIA RACES.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 5.—The track was very fast to-day and the attendance large.

The only unpleasant feature was an accident in the third race, in which three jockeys were more or less injured. Magee, the one who was the worst injured, is still unconscious at six o'clock to-night, and Brown is thought to be out of danger.

Three-year-olds and upwards three-fourths of a mile—Cannon won, Renounce second, Governor Ross, third; Time 1:15.

Three-year-olds and upwards, three-fourths of a mile—Irish Dan won, Pell-Mell second, Dutch Mac third; Time 1:17¾.

Three-year-olds and upwards, mile—Glenmore came in first at the finish, a length in front of Corn Fisher. Chance was, however, disqualified on account of a foul and Cora Fisher was given first place. Winning Ways second, Deer Lodge third; time, 1:44¾.

Two-year-olds, colts and geldings, five furlongs—W. G. Morris won, Fakir second, Milton third; time, 1:03¾.

Three-year-olds and upwards, nine furlongs—Woodcraft won, Longalight second, Nevada third; time, 1:59¾.

Three hundred dollar stakes, two-year-old fillies, three-fourths of a mile—English Lady won, Sis O'Lee second Dilemma third; time, 1:17.

JEROME PARK RACES.

JEROME PARK, N. Y., Oct. 5.—The attendance to-day was the largest of the meeting. Mile and one-sixteenth—Salvator won in 1:50¾, Hyperion and Ganymede ran a dead heat for second place.

Fourteen hundred yards, 2-year-olds—Judge Morrow won, Tournament second, Magnate third; time, 1:24.

Mile—Raceland won in 1:26¾, Budge second, Volunteer third.

Five furlongs—Bradford won in 1:00, Adolph second, Drumstick third.

Mile and one-quarter—Firenzi walked over the course.

Mile and one-sixteenth—Brussels won, Loretia second, Elgin third; time, 1:54½.

ST. LOUIS RACES.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—2:20 class, $1500—Geneva 3, first, Frank Middleton second, Jeremiah third, Bethlehem Star fourth; no time given.

Gascondo stakes, $915, three-year-old colts and fillies, mile heats—Joey L. first, Dora Cossuck second, Optimist third; no time given.

KANSAS CITY RACES.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 5.—This was the last day of the Exposition Park Driving Association's races.

Wyandotte special stakes—Dan first, John Taylor second, Mattie H. third, Edith fourth; best time, 2:38¼.

Consolation purse, for pacers—Louis B. first, John Hazzard second, Finnegan third; best time, 2:18½.

FAST RACING AT SAN JOSE.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Oct. 5.—Fast time was made to-day in the free for all pacing, purse $1 200, between Gold Leaf and Adonis. In the first heat Gold Leaf led to the homestretch, where Adonis passed, and came in ahead in 2:14¾. Adonis won a second heat easily in 2:14¼. In the third heat, Gold Leaf fell behind at the half-mile post, while Adonis dashed on, slowing up only near the finish, and making a mile in 2:14.

AMONG THE "THREE LINKERS."

Various Notes Concerning the Odd Fellows Lodges in Portland.

The new lodge paraphernalia will be here about October 12.

Medford lodge No. 53, is the banner lodge in number of initiations, sixteen.

Ellison encampment will have work in the Patriarchal degree next Tuesday evening.

Hassalo lodge conferred the third degree on seven candidates at their meeting Friday evening.

Harmony encampment admitted four candidates to the Patriarchal degree on Tuesday evening.

Progress lodge worked the first degree to one candidate last Monday, and will have three candidates for the initiatory degree next Monday.

Grand Secretary Gambell reports a net increase of 278 in the membership in Oregon for the six months ending June 30, 1889. A very good showing.

The preliminary meeting to organize a lodge at Albina was well attended and the prospects are that the new lodge will start with forty members.

Montezuma lodge No. 50, of Hillsboro, are having a boom. They conferred the second degree on two candidates and the third degree on one candidate at their last meeting.

The Canton movement is booming and the prospects are that Portland will soon have a uniformed body that will be a pride to Portland and a credit to the order of Odd Fellows. A MEMBER.

Scrofula sores, swellings in the neck and all impurities, are cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

FROM THE ORIENT.

Disastrous Floods and Typhoons in Portions of China and Japan.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—From the Oriental journals which arrived by steamer late last night, the following notes are gleaned:

On the 24th of August a terrific typhoon passed over the China sea.

The steamer Fung Shun, 863 tons burden, struck a rock on Alceste Island, on the 21st of August, and was beached by the commander. No lives were lost.

There have been disastrous floods at Ningpo and vicinity, caused by rains and high tides. Much destruction was caused in the harbor and surrounding country, and many lives were lost. In some places the whole face of the country has been changed by the torrents.

The Chinese intend building a telegraph line to go through Shanghai. It will be about 1500 miles long.

The export of rice from Canton, hitherto prohibited, is in the future to be allowed, subject to duty.

The country was visited by another very bad typhoon on the 11th of September, accompanied by tidal waves and enormous damage.

One pecuniary case: The commander of a Japanese gunboat just arrived from Kobe states that for a distance of no less than ninety miles along the coast he passed through the debris of houses, and the wreckage of furniture, so thickly scattered over the surface of the sea that at times it almost became necessary to stop the vessel.

The Tokio Kaun thus describes the wreck in one section: In Kajimachi two blocks of buildings were demolished, ninety-two houses being partially damaged. Telegraph wires were broken down in Asakusa. Two blocks of buildings and two wards were demolished. Fifty-one houses sustained more or less severe damage, and 134 fences were destroyed. In Yatsuta three blocks of buildings were destroyed and seventy-one houses sustained more or less severe damage, while 225 fences were destroyed. Many trees were uprooted, and the roofs of eight police stations were damaged. In Nihanbashi many fences were destroyed, and the roofs of 135 houses were damaged, while a block of brick buildings at Nakamiz was demolished. The five-story buildings at Senzokumra, the construction of which has just been completed, were destroyed, and two adjoining buildings were crushed. In Kyobashi, factories were destroyed. One government school and three public schools and hundreds of fences received more or less damage, and several roads and bridges were greatly injured.

The text of the treaties between Japan, the United States, Germany and Russia will be issued by notification in February next. The negotiation of new treaties with other foreign powers will be concluded before that date.

One or two more of the leading ports of Corea are under serious consideration by the authorities most concerned to be thrown open as treaty ports to general commerce.

PIRATES made a raid on the night of July 10, on the village of Hatow, to steal women and children. The Courier D'Haiphong says: On the following day M. Benoit, vice resident at Quangyen, left for Hatow with a force of militia, but the pirates had disappeared, having no doubt gone to Pakhoi to sell their captives.

MEXICO.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 5.—The cyclone of Carmen island, off the coast of Campechy the 18th ult., strewed the shore with wreckage from vessels in harbor. Only one vessel of thirty-five tons weathered the gale. All the schooners that had sought refuge at a point called Quintille were also wrecked. The loss in the city is $500,000. The ruin are being overhauled for dead bodies.

News of great destruction in other town near Carmen is received, houses being demolished and crops laid low. The loss will not fall short of a million.

NOTES FROM MEXICO.

CITY OF MEXICO, (via Galveston), Oct. 5.—It is rumored here that the Yaqui Indians in Sonora routed the Twenty-fifth infantry yesterday.

The state of Yucatan is bankrupt.

A Drunken Father's Crime.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 5.—Felix Kanf put his son, William, and daughter, Mary, to death last night. He was drunk and the children refused him shelter. Kanf was arrested.

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Stocks to-day were rather heavy, which was for the most part the result of the renewal of the pressure upon trust stocks. The dealings in stocks of the regular list was more bullish, and the first prices were generally slight fractions higher than last night's closing prices. Sugar was the special point of attack, and it declined to 83¾. Cotton seed oil also dropped to 42¾. Toward 11 o'clock the prices rallied all over the room, and most of the stocks of the regular list were brought up to something better than the opening prices. After the issue of the bank statement, which showed that for the first time in over five years there was a deficit in the reserve, caused a renewal of the weakness, and the market closed quiet, but weak, at irregular changes of small fractions. Sugar, however, is down 2 and cotton seed oil 1 per cent.

Government bonds have been dull and steady.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKETS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—Receipts of produce the past twenty-four hours included 145,000 ctls wheat, 12,500 brls flour, 4500 ctls oats, 7600 sks potatoes, 5900 ctls barley.

Freights—Nothing doing in the way of spot chartering. Exporters are freely supplied with tonnage by la e arrivals.

Wheat—The sample market to-day was quite neglected, and, as a result, much of a holiday character. Bids are out at $1 30 to $1 32½ for round lots of No. 1 shipping; offerings light. Options—Dull, but firm. Sales, 100 tons of No. 1 white; buyer the year, at $1 37½; buyer season, $1 44¾; seller year, $1 32½.

Barley—Trading slow; a light business is doing in choice feed, but other feed descriptions are neglected. Quote feed, choice, 70@72½c; No. 1 feed, 67½@70; brewing, 80@81.

Oats—Firmly held; trade is hardly active, but the tendency of the market is in sellers' favor; and full prices are demanded on the upper grades of feed oats. Quote choice feed $1 17½@1 20; No. 1 feed, $1 15@1 16½; milling, $1 22½@1 25.

Potatoes—Receipts and offerings are more than adequate for present requirements; prices consequently are ruled by favorers.

Millstuffs—Firm and active with an upward tendency: bran $12 50@14; middlings $14 50@17 per ton.

Wool—Holders entertain firm views and are holding desirable clips at figures above buyer's ideas. A moderate movement is in progress in securing wools.

Hops—The market presents no new features. There are few buyers. Prices are nominal at 7@8c.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Receipts of wheat past twenty-four hours at the seven principal points east of the Rocky mountains were 750,000 bushels, and the shipments 238,000 bushels.

Wheat—Steadier; fair demand; opened 81½c October, 82½ December, 85½c May. Noon—81c October, 83c December, 87½c May; closed, 81½c October, 83½c December, 86¾c May.

20,000 AT THE EXPOSITION.

The Attendance Yesterday the Largest Since the Opening Night.

Railroader's Day—Lively Voting for the Most Popular Man—Exquisite Music—Excellence of Individual Exhibits

"What a crowd!" "How in the world are we to get through here?" and similar expressions were heard on every hand by visitors to the Exposition yesterday evening The expressions gave but a faint idea of the thousands who thronged every available inch of space in the music hall, the art gallery and the walks separating the booths of exhibitors Every seat in the art gallery was occupied, the steps were crowded, and the lower floor was one literally solid mass of humanity The attendance was the largest of any night since the opening, and a conservative estimate places it at 20,000 Mayor DeLashmutt said it was all of that, Assistant Secretary Allen thought it probable that it was larger, and General Kapus most emphatically stated that no such a crowd had ever assembled in Portland before The jam was almost indescribable, and no one could fully realize its density until he tried to edge his way through, from one end of the building to the other

The 20,000 tickets admitting exposition visitors to go on board the United States fishing steamer "The Albatross," have all been distributed, and last night many who asked for them had to be refused More will be printed

It is expected that Wednesday evening "wedding day" the attendance will be fully as large as it was last night. Three couples are already on he ARRIONS seat and Superintendent Koel ler is looking for more

RAILROADER'S DAY

Yesterday was railroader's day at the great exposition, and the all important question as to which engineer, conductor or brakeman running on the trains having headquarters in Portland was, on a fair vote, the most popular man was before the house By some oversight the coupon tickets were not ready for distribution at the door, and as a consequence it became necessary to es ablish a polling place near the main entrance The directors relying upon a general principle of fairness among all visitors, the ubiquitous "small boy" included set no watch at the polling place and the consequence was that before the voting had proceeded very far a most excellent object lesson in the matter of the value of a registry law, or at least the importance of a strict supervision of the polls at all times in every place, was presented The "small boy" aforesaid, in numbers, finding that he was free to pitch in, started in on a system of ballot-box stuffing which would have made them conspicuous on the palmiest days of Boss Tweed Like the rat which Sir Boyle Roach "saw floating in the air," however, these youthful contaminators of the ballot-box were "nipped in the bud" and arrangements were made for "a free ballot and a fair count."

Three boys, of the more reliable sort, were stationed at the different entrances, and these youngsters handed each visitor a ticket who wrote the name of his favorite on the ticket and deposited it in the urn. There was a good deal of lively canvassing The ladies—God bless 'em—however indifferent they may be on the subject of political suffrage, came unhesitatingly and unflinchingly to the front in support and behalf of their favorites, and the fortunate winner of the beautiful gold watch offered as a prize by Mr L Henrichson, may, beyond doubt, feel well assured that he owes his highly prized souvenir to the persistent efforts of his lady friends

Up to 9 P M., W T Crocker, D R Miller Ed Lyons, Mr Wilson and Mr Pease seemed to be the leading candidates, and deep was the interest manifested by their respective friends But you can't most always tell where the lightning will strike, what the verdict of a jury will be, or how an election will result especially where there are so many candidates While this screed is being written, some "dark horse" may be running neck and-neck with the favorite, and at the end may come out ahead and 'awise the field" Here the reporter calls a halt until the polls are closed and the result announced

The polls were closed at 9 P M., and the counting, owing to the immense crowd and the tremendous vote, was postponed until Monday, the 7th inst Mr. Henrichsen will appoint one of the tellers and the directors another and these two will choose a third The counting will commence at the Exposition building at 9 P. M. on Monday It is impossible at this writing to hazard a guess as to the lucky man There were many candidates, and not a few 'scattering votes' The result will be telephoned to Meyer's cigar store at the Gilman house and M A Gunst & Co's and bulletined as soon as known on Monday

THE MUSIC

The programme for yesterday, both afternoon and evening, was made up of a singularly felicitous selection of well known music supplemented by several numbers presented in response to emphatic encores "The Mill in the Forest," the third number in the evening was rendered in a manner which commanded the most profound attention from the thousands who thronged the halls and galleries and every available "coigne of vantage" on the spacious floors After the prelude the first note of the cuckoo brought a hush of silence which could almost be felt. And this silence was scarcely broken as the bird's melody fell, like a shower of scintillant gems All the familiar sounds of the forest homestead were reproduced with a fidelity which would almost serve to put Dame Nature on her mettle. Through it all ran the familiar clatter of the mill wheel, and it was heard, now full and resounding, now low and soft, as the crowing of chanticleer, the low of the kine, the neighing of horses and the many other sounds which accompany the ushering of the day in such locality swelled in their natural volume and then for one brief moment ceased As a realistic reproduction of a morning at the Mill in the Forest," Liberati scored another grand success

The stately and magnificent overture to Rossini's masterpiece, "William Tell" was the crowning triumph of the night. Only in the heroic measures of Meyerbeer's "Le Prophete" may such soul stirring strains be looked for as abound in 'William Tell' It is true that the overture only foreshadows the majestic themes of the entire work but there is enough in it to suggest what Milton meant when he said

And at the bass of heaven's deep organ blow

The grand march in 'Tell' is as solemn as the Coronation anthem, as profound in its capacity to move the soul to emotions of admiration for heroic deeds and sympathy for freedom 'cabin'd, cribb'd, confin'd' and oppressed, as ever found expression in spoken word or written score As the music swells from the full throated basso for clamors from the quivering reed to the writer it is as if one were cloistered in some antique temple, and the soul is borne along, while listening, as when swept resistlessly by Homer's magic wand upon the torrent and rise and fall "and long roll of the hexameter" Such music, rendered as Liberati presents it is of itself a liberal education in courage and manly dignity

Bolli and Pesci contributed largely to the pleasure of the afternoon and evening by their vocalization

Liberati's solo on the cornet met with its usual enthusiastic reception.

The music in the evening was a repetition of what it was in the afternoon, as far as expression and perfection of playing is concerned. There was a new programme, of course and many thousand more people to listen in wrapped attention as the harmonious cords rolled out like the melodies of a mid-summer breez

THE GREAT DISPLAYS.

The Magnificent "Temple of Beauty" Decorated by W. M. Wisdom & Co.

PUBLIC OPINION.

As regards the attractive exhibits at the Exposition, is best evidenced by the attention and interest manifested by the visitors Probably there is no part of the entire Exposition that attracts as much attention as the south end of machinery hall gallery The display here is exceptionally fine and would do credit to any city in the United States The booth is richly and artistically draped with many colored bunthigs and beautiful banners and brilliantly lighted, all combining a splendid effect This entire exhibit is devoted to a display of fine carriages by Stayer & Walker, of the New Market block, Portland Oregon who are the largest carriage dealers on the coast Their exhibit is fully in keeping with their acknowledged reputation as leaders in the carriage trade and comprises the finest specimens of the carriage makers' art ever seen west of the Mississippi river The mere enumeration of the many splendid vehicles gives one but a faint impression of their real elegance, and of the completeness and artistic excellence of this exhibit, which by the way, reflects great credit on the firm of Stayer & Walker who have always been among the foremost to advance the business interests of the Northwest

All visitors to this exhibit will be richly repaid and, besides, will receive a ticket free of charge entitling them to an equal chance in the drawing for the thirty-six grand prizes to be distributed by Stayer & Walker on the last day of the exposition.

THE TEMPLE OF BEAUTY

The most elaborate piece of architectural work in the entire fair building is the Robertine temple of Messrs W M Wisdom & Co, located in the central portion of the lower floor of the east wing. This was erected by Mr. Wisdom, under his own watchful eye at a great expense and as it was designed especially to please, it has been dedicated the

"TEMPLE OF BEAUTY."

It is striking without being gaudy it is rich, with an entire absence of high coloring, and it is that class of work which at once appeals to the man or woman whose taste is esthetic without being insipid, as a most perfect blending of colors and effect There is no display at the fair that has had the time and pains expended in its arrangement The attractive feature of this exhibit as explained before is the grand temple which at once arrests the attention of every person entering the fair building In all the six acres of floor space in the building there is no piece of work that so soon calls for the commendation of visitors, and there is no piece of work that is so truly original in its conception and design

The question has been so repeatedly asked

WHAT IS IT?

That the time is ripe for answering in detail It is a veritable Temple of Beauty What has this to do with Robertine? Follow us and you shall know. From the earliest time temples were erected and dedicated to such subjects as their architectural or historical significance, would seem to indicate Following this custom, Mr Wisdom conceived the idea of erecting a Grecian temple, typical of a period when physical beauty was paramount to all other accomplishments, and as his purpose is to improve and elevate this most desirable attraction, physical beauty, there exists a close connection between this structure, or its intent, and the preparations which Mr Wisdom is manufacturing for the special adornment of the fair sex. In this exhibit it was not thought advisable to make an extensive display of the goods, but rather something emblematical of their use and leave the intelligent reader scope for exercising his individual conceptions of its purport. This was unquestionably a happy thought, as has been already proved by the result, for it has aroused more curiosity and created more talk than any exhibit ever before made in Portland, and in this effect is the value of good advertising Every observing person who attends the first exhibition of the N P I Assn will long remember the Robertine temple when all other displays have faded from memory A description of the mechanical construction will be given in a future issue of this paper

ART GLASS DECORATIONS

As showing the growth and development of the industrial enterprises properly coming under the head of higher arts in this state no exhibit at the fair is of more importance or significance than that of Povey Bros proprietors of the art stained glass works at 42 Second street in this city These are the only works of the kind on the coast north of San Francisco, and the work that this firm is doing is aiding materially the encouragement of Portland's position as one of the leading supply centers of the coast

Established in Portland but little more than one year ago Povey Bros are now practically doing all the work in their line in the Pacific Northwest. Since their establishment in the city they have done the work for some of the largest and finest buildings in Oregon and Washington both public and private, and they to-day have the reputation of doing a class of work that is not excelled by even the largest establishments of the kind in the East Both the gentlemen composing the firm are experienced workmen of many years experience. The senior partner, Mr. D L Povey, is an artist in his line of the highest standing and it may be well to note here that all of the work turned out by the firm is after designs of his own drawing Povey Bros are now at work on the heaviest contract in decorated glass work ever taken in the Northwest —that of Portland's big hotel An idea of the immensity of this contract can be obtained from the fact that in the dining room alone of this caravansary so many German spun roundels were required that the supply could not be obtained from the United States it being necessary to order them specially from Germany for the occasion In addition to the Portland, Povey Bros have just finished the art glass work on the elegant residence of George B Markle of this city and have also done the same kind of work on other principal buildings and residences in this city and elsewhere, which will be mentioned at length in a following issue The exhibit of Povey Bros at the fair consists principally of designs all from the hand of Mr D L Povey This is one of the displays that should be seen by every one visiting the Industrial building, and it is worthy of the closest inspection

'49 AND '89

One of the exhibits at the fair that has been the subject of considerable comment from all interested in photography is one of the higher arts that of Watson, the photographer whose gallery in this city are located at No 225 First street Mr Watson is to-day one of the leading photographers of Portland and his work stands per haps as high as that of any first class gallery on the coast A feature of this gentleman's methods of dealing with his customers is that while during the fair he is making photographs as low as the cheapest photographer in the city he still maintains the general standard of his work and in no instance does a photograph leave his establishment that has not withstood the test of his critical eye One of the most striking things connected with the display of Watson is the view of the hardy pioneer in all the vigor of perfect manhood, gun in hand in an attitude that says in a stronger language than words can express, his willingness to meet every danger and privation of border life, the type of the man who paved the way for the settlement of a country that is to-day ranked among the most prosperous in the Union A portrait side by side with the foregoing shows the young man of a later period who has visited the shores of the Pacific, having accomplished his journey in a luxurious Pullman with all the accompaniments of his pet poodle flashy glasses and equally as flashy apparel and appearances bandboxes, fishing rods etc To the early settlers of the state these two views are of considerable interest, and as significant of the two types of the west word bound in the years of '49 and 89 respectively they are admired by every visitor to the fair

THAT ATTRACTIVE COTTAGE

The unique little cottage a perfect house in itself, is admired by all visiting the south end of the east wing of the fair building This was constructed by Lewis & Anustom for the Cleveland Oil & Paint Mfg Co of this city at great expense and is one of the neatest and most showy things in the entire fair, It is furnished throughout and is lighted by electricity. This house is painted with the Cleveland cottage roof and floor paints and the harmonious blending and rich effect of these high grade paints shows artistic taste in their application It will doubtless be a matter of the greatest surprise to the many visiting the fair to learn that in the painting of this house only the clear cottage colors were used without the admixture of any varnish or gloss whatever The effective arrangement of the cans and barrels of ready mixed paints shown in this exhibit all of this same company's own manufacture adds greatly to the attractiveness of this booth The cans hermetically sealed labeled and ready for shipment contain all the way from one pint up to five gallons of their ready mixed paint. Wherever these paints have been used they have given the most unbounded satisfaction, and letters commendatory of them have been received by the firm from all parts of the country The Cleveland Oil & Paint Manufacturing Company are to day the only manufacturers of mixed paints in the Northwest and their factory in this city is constantly being run to its fullest capacity Particular attention is called here to the immense signs on the side of their building at the northwest corner of Front and Stark streets, displaying in a most effective manner the colors These large salesrooms are well worthy of a visit from all visitors to the fair, and the members of the firm and their employes will take great pleasure in welcoming all strangers who may call on them while in the city

THE LADIES DELIGHTED

There is no lady that visits the fair who is not captivated with the magnificent display of furs made by the leading furrier of the city Mr E E Bolliow, located at No 29 Washington street in this city In all the pertains to a rich collection of furs and dressed skins Mr Bollow has certainly made a display this year at the Industrial building that has never before been equalled on this coast. He shows not only the valuable sealskin suitable for the finest cloaks, but he also has on display in his exhibit one of the finest collection of dressed skins of all kinds of his own importation, ever seen in this city

Mr Bollow is to-day the largest manufacturer of fur garments in the Northwest In his large parlors on Washington street he carries a full line of the best of furs and skins, and he is at the present writing in daily receipt of orders for sealskin garments from all parts of the United States This is a trade that has been built up by the most consistent and unremittant labor on the part of this gentleman himself and it is a trade that is rapidly increasing year by year Mr Bollow keeps constantly employed in his establishment some of the finest cutters and fitters on the coast and all the garments that leave his hands have passed the most rigid inspection of his own watchful eye Strange as the statement may appear to the uninformed, it is a fact not disputed by the largest furriers in the United States that the finest seal skin garments can be obtained of Mr Bollow at a price varying from 25 to 50 per cent less than of any furrier east of the Mississippi It is these prevailing low prices, together with the high standard of his work that this gentleman has at all times maintained that has made him to-day one of the largest and leading furriers of the coast

HEATING FURNACES

There is no furnace in the world that possesses so many points of conceded superiority as the original Richardson & Boynton Co's heater sold by Mr H B Chase at No 129 Sixth street of this city This furnace has been placed by Mr Chase in many of the finest buildings in the Northwest, and it is claimed by this gentleman that he has to-day more of them in the finest residences of Portland than any other furnace in the market Among the leading residences in which Mr Chase has just placed the Richardson are those of Mr Charles Sitton Captain Willard Young and Mr J K Gill In addition to these houses he is just now furnishing the heaters for the new Convent of the Holy Name now being erected in Portland and it is a matter of this highest indorsement of this furnace that this contract was obtained against the strongest competition All visitors to the fair are cordially invited by Mr Chase to call on him at his establishment in this city, and he will take the greatest pleasure in explaining to them the merits of his heaters, and at the same time show them through the only exclusive furnace establishment west of Chicago

HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE.

Forbes & Wheeler, the well known furniture dealers have dissolved partnership, and Mr C M. Forbes the senior partner will continue business at the old stand 244 and 246 First street The losses necessarily attending this arrangement alone kept this enterprising firm from making an exhibit at the fair this year Visitors to the fair will find it to their interest to call and examine the magnificent array of furniture, mirrors, carpets, clocks, brackets, stoves baby carriages, etc to be seen in this mammoth store An important feature of the business is the sale of goods upon the installment plan involving but a very small cash payment

OF INTEREST TO SHEEP GROWERS

James Laidlaw & Co exhibit an article at the fair which is of particular interest to all farmers Little's patent sheep dip The article in question, is an odorless non poisonous, chemical fluid which is serviceable for promoting the growth of wool and stimulating the fleece There is probably no article manufactured to day which is so effective in its particular capacity of increasing the quantity and improving the quality of the wool

ARTISTIC MARBLE CUTTING

The marble cutting of Otto Schumann as shown in his display of monuments and headstones, is worthy of the attention of every visitor at the Industrial building Mr Schumann is a manufacturer of all kinds of marble granite and stone works and his facilities for turning out the highest order of art in carving are of the best Drawings are readily made from descriptions of desired work

FAIR NOTES

A display of stoves would seem to unmitigated as a very dark subject to touch on especially in any mention of the attractive exhibit at the fair Messrs Dekum Bros of this city make a showing of stoves and ranges in the Industrial building, however that is as attractive as anything in the building This firm handles the Superior stoves and ranges conceded to be the best in the market and they will be pleased to show these high grade goods to all visitors who will take the time to call on them in their salesroom at the corner of Second and Washington streets

The magnificent display of Olds & Summer continues to be one of the great drawing cards of the fair There has never been any exhibit of china or cut glassware made on the coast that could compare to this creditable exhibit Shown in this stand is the valuable silver tilting pitcher to be awarded to the oldest pioneer on Pioneer's day at the Industrial exposition on the 18th inst No one should visit the great fair without taking a look at the display made by this firm

No 121 held by Miss Ida McKalister won the magnificent music box presented by H W Fisher at the fair last evening. During the continuance of the fair Mr Fisher will continue giving away valuable presents at his exhibit each evening It may be well to mention here however, that all prizes that are not called for on the evening of the award will be forfeited
